PLAN FOR 1915 FARMERS' DAY

Event Next Year to be Run on Larger Scale and Preparations will be Started Early in the Summer. More Prizes.

That an earlier start in preparations, more system in the giving of premiums, and more entertainment for the public on Farmers' Day, will be necessary to secure the success of next year's Farmers' Day was the consensus of opinion expressed by the business men of town at a meeting held in the Law Library on Wednesday evening.

It was proposed at this meeting to have the list of premiums announced in either June or July so that the county people generally could direct their endeavors with those aiming to win. Fruits and vegetables, for which no premiums have been offered in other years, will be included next year and an effort made to cover every variety raised in the county. It was pointed out that the premiums given in Gettysburg on Farmers' Day are decidedly more generous than those given at any of the fairs and sufficiently attractive to bring out scores of entrants.

At the business men's meeting it was also agreed that there should be a more systematic method of arranging the premium list so that there should be less duplications and so that the scope of awards should be more general.

"We must provide music and we must have other entertainment besides the parade", said one business man in discussing ways to improve the day. All agreed that he was correct, so that early next summer there will be taken to see that there is plenty of entertainment in the way of music and the regulation features of the day.

Regarding the day just passed, it was reported that the subscriptions made by banks, business men and other places of business would meet the expenses if all can be collected, which is likely.

In order that things may soon be gotten in proper shape for 1915 the following committee was appointed to name officers for 1915: C. Ford Hartman, C. B. Dougherty, George E. Spangler, and C. B. Linebaugh.

The cash prizes for the parade and association apple show will be paid on Saturday at the office of G. E. Spangler in the Court House.

In the Association apple contest, first prize of $2 and second prizes of $1 were awarded as follows:

Smokehouse: first, D. M. Hoffman, Biglerville; second, J. C. Wible, Arendtsville.

York Imperial: first, George M. Bosher, Cashtown; second, Boyer Brothers, Arendtsville.

Grimes Golden: first, Boyer Brothers,

Staymen Winesap: first, C. S. Rice, Arendtsville; second, Boyer Brothers.

Jonathan: first, Boyer Brothers; second, D. M. Hoffman.

Baldwin: first, Boyer Brothers.

George Motter, of Mount Joy township, won Funkhouser's choice of sheep for the largest three ears of corn. Miss Alice Leech was the second prize offered by Leo H. Miller for the best plate of fudge; and Harry Tawney captured the $2.50 sweater at Frushour's for bringing the largest number of live rats.

The Plaine House got twenty five pounds of sugar at the West End grocery for the largest amount of purchases during the week.

SALES MADE

Store at York Springs and Farm Near Sora Held.

Register and Recorder C. W. Gardner, with his family, left last week to Gettysburg from York Springs, Mr. Gardner has sold his store in that place to William J. Willet, of Hanover, who will take possession in the near future.

R. E. Sprenkle has sold his 200 acre farm near Sora to E. C. Fritz, of Mont Alto. Possession will be given April first.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETY

There will be a meeting to-night (Thursday) at 7:30 in the lecture room of the Presbyterian church to discuss the formation of a choral society. All singers are invited.

HUNT FOR DOE KILLING MAN

State Police Search South Mountain for Slayer of Harmless Doe. Carcass Sent to Mont Alto Sanitorium.

The three state policemen now in Cumberland county are in search of, with the hope of capturing, the man who last Saturday killed the doe that was found dying in an open field just northeast of Newmanstown on the South Mountain.

When found the blood was still flowing from the wounds received in the animal. The doe was at once sent to Mont Alto sanitorium, as required by law, for the benefit of the people who live in that section.

Doe killing is quite too frequent in that section. It is known that this shooting was not accidental. It is believed that a white person who fired the shot expected to return by night for the meat. It will aid the security of the people as a retinal life in that section if the state officers get after the murderer before he gets to Jumbo.

So abundant are wild turkeys in certain sections of Cumberland county lockwhat growers are complaining that the birds are destroying the crops, and as the turkeys are protected for but two additional days the crops are destroyed are asking the State Game Commission if they cannot set a date from the 15th to the 20th.

In Franklin, Juniata and Perry counties turkeys are not as plenty as most every township, and by the time the season opens, November 15, next year, 1915, they will be very plentiful, and the hunting will be more sport. The birds seem to know that they are protected by the state authorities in the woods, over fields and across roads where there are no guns, although they are in full view of people passing.

In Franklin county, on the north side of the valley, they have been seen in large numbers. Only three States in the Union have a law protecting deer on for turkeys extending over more than a year.—Oklahoma, Florida and Pennsylvania.

G. WILLIAM HORNER

County Man Dies from Illness following Operation.

From the effects of a stroke of apoplexy received while returning home from the Gettysburg Country Club grounds in Gettysburg on Saturday, G. William Horner, of Cumberland township, at 7:45 at his home in Cumberland township near Rothsburg's Mill aged 58 years.

He was born and lived almost his entire life in the county in which he died. He leaves his wife who, before marriage, was Miss Dare Bush, of Virginia. He leaves one son and two daughters, Miss Ruth Horner, of South Dakota; Mrs. James Bigham, of Cumberland township, Mrs. Herbert Hauer, Mount Joy township. Two sisters also survive, Mrs. Annie Robertson, of Wardlesburg, Md., and Mrs. John McCabe, of Hagerstown.

The funeral services afternoon at one o'clock from his late residence. Interment in Evergreen Cemetery, Gettysburg.

AUTO PARTY HERE

Almost Half a Hundred on Touring Outing.

With Major Y. G. Anderson in charge, forty eight persons left Camp Von Wantmoreland, Patriarchs Militant, of Mt. Pleasant arrived here late Wednesday afternoon on their way home from Pottstown. They are traveling in automobiles and motor trucks carry with them a baggage auto and a kitchen auto and commissary wagons. They have been very fortunate throughout the trip, and while in Gettysburg they stayed at the City Hotel.

GAVE BANQUET

Department Store Entertains Farmers at Supper.

The Gettysburg Department Store entertained at a banquet at Hotel Gettysburg, Tuesday evening, about 125 county farmers and their wives. An elaborate supper and then witnessed a moving picture show were followed by representatives of the American Steel and Wire Company.

MUST PAY THE WAR TAX HERE

Gettysburg and the County will Share in the General Revenue Raising Means which are Expected soon to Become Effective.

Gettysburg institutions and individuals will have to pay their share of the new taxes imposed by the new war tax bill which becomes effective upon the signature of President Wilson. The measure is to provide the revenue which has been cut off by the European situation.

There are a number of ways in which the people of Gettysburg will directly feel the effects of the new war tax, among them being:

The banks must pay $1 per $1000 of capital, surplus and undivided profits; proprietors of operating picture theatres, members of music and high school auditorium, issue receipts from $10 to $75; bowling alleys and billiard rooms, $50 for each alley or table; holders of bonds and certificates of debt, 2 cents on each $100 of value; promissory notes, 2 cents per $100; conveyances, 50 cents; all sealing, 1 cent each.

Telegraph and telephone messages, 1 cent each; conveyances, 50 cents on values between $100 and $500, and 50 cents for each additional $500 or fraction; fire insurance policies, 1 cent on each dollar of premium charged; all inventory, 10 cents; proxies of notes, 2 cents each; drafts, bills of exchange and berths, 1 cent; manufacturers of cigarettes, cheroots and cigars, for the first 1,000,000, $3; 200,000 cigars, $6 per thousand.

Among the other taxes are these: Beer, $1.75 a barrel; mineral waters, 5 cents a gallon; all domestic still wines, 8 cents a gallon, and 16 cents a gallon on all foreign wines; on fortification thereof; champagnes, 25 cents a gallon; perfumery, 8 per cent; cosmetics, 8 per cent.

The estimated revenue it will yield is estimated at $167,000,000 a year; Gettysburg's share will be a considerable slump in beer production, $92,000,000.

MRS. EYLER IS MARRIED AGAIN

Is Wedded to County Farmer Two Days after Divorce is Granted War in Local Court. Will Reside in Freedom Township.

Two days after she was granted a divorce from her husband, William Eyler, Mrs. Lulu B. Eyler was married to Warren Stoltzfus, a well to do farmer of Cashtown. The ceremony was performed by Rev. P. T. E. Stoltzfus, at the Mt. Joy Parsonage.

The wedding couple were unattended and the ceremony was witnessed by a few members of the Stoltzfus household. Afterward Mr. and Mrs. Stoltzfus went to the home of the bridegroom's father, George Stoltzfus, in Freedom township. Mr. Fries is employed as the farm of Charles F. and Marshall Stoltzfus along Marsh Creek.

In their application for marriage license the bride-to-be gave her age as 28 years, 2 months and 7 days at the time of the trial of her first husband. They were married in 1906 and William Eyler is now serving a life sentence in the Eastern Penitentiary. During his imprisonment in the Adams County jail awaiting a disposition of his case a daughter was born to the couple. Mrs. Eyler was granted by Mrs. Eyler several months ago on the technical ground of desertion and the decree was granted on Monday.

Mr. Fries, it is understood, will continue in the employ of the Bigham and Stoltzfus farms and will with reside in Freedom township.

Miss Ruth Weaver, of High street, went to Reading this morning to resume her studies.

TO ERECT FINE NEW FRAT HOUSE

Building of Colonial Type to Replace Structure Burned in Fire of Last February. Finest Structure of Kind at College.

Active operations will start next week and it is expected to be the most pretentious fraternity house at Gettysburg College. The local chapter of Alpha Tau Omega have given the contract for their new building to Jesse B. Warner, in Waynesboro builder. The approximate cost will be $7500.

The new house will be erected on the lot on which the three story building, destroyed by fire on the night of February 22 last, was located. It will be of brick construction and arched both in its exterior and in its interior finish. Two stories in height, it will have all the equipment necessary for a thoroughly modern fraternity building. The fraternity architect prepared the plans.

The building will be constructed of brick with a red pressed brick front. It will have a massive colonial portico, with four white wooden pillars extending from the ground floor to the top of the building. A beautiful balcony will open out from the second floor, colonial lines being followed in all the exterior.

On the first floor there will be a couple reception rooms, a reading room and an assembly room about thirty feet square. There will be large open fireplaces in each of these rooms and arrangements will be provided so that the floor of the latter may be cleared into one for social affairs.

On the second floor there will be a meeting room, with the necessary courts, and sleeping apartments for members to the rules at the college the boys may occupy. Some will be used for fraternity houses, but these bed rooms will prove convenient for alumni and visiting members when they come to entertain.

The kitchen is about ready for active work, the members of the chapter having cleaned out the entire basement of the debris from the fire last spring. The kitchen will be on the second floor, standing but they can be taken down with little difficulty. It will be ready for the festivities of the second annual home coming reunion of commencement week in June.

BOOK ANOTHER GAME

College will Play Strong New York Team Next Month.

The management of the Gettysburg College has left nought but the game to game with the Fordham University football team on Saturday, November 7, on the home grounds. Negotiations were pending for this game with the Fordham team for some time but failed to materialize until the entire team showed up well for their first game.

SENDING AWAY ALL GUARD EQUIPMENT

Seven Carloads of Lumber and other Materials Shipped from here to Border Points. Effect on Future Encampments.

With the removal to Mount Gretna of all the State's equipment at Gettysburg, shipment of which was made this week, there will be further National Guard encampments on local ground would seem to be impossible.

Seven carloads of lumber and other material were sent on Thursday morning by Lieutenant Colonel L. Y. Baldwin, who has been here the past week with six men from the Commissary Department, preparatory to the shipment. Assisting this detail were six Gettysburg laborers who helped to the large task.

The old armsel along the Bond Top trench, and for years as a storage place in winter and a sanitionary during encampments, has been razed and is included in the shipment to the State Camp at Mount Lebanon. There it will be re-erected for further use in the handling of supplies and will not be constructed at Mount Gretna where all of the material, shipped away will be put in storage.

The lumber sent from Gettysburg was that which the Sowers used in other years in officers' quarters, the kitchen and mess halls, commissary and other buildings, other lumber being purchased for the work of preparing the ground for the semi-annual encampments and for other equipment. Fifty barrels of lime, also used to improve grounds, were shipped.

Colonel Rausch, in discussing the removal of all this material from Gettysburg, said that he was pleased to read about expressing any opinion about the matter, but would like to be asked about what effect it would have on future encampments when he is spoken briefly, "I can't tell".

The fact that the last detail under the work was given by Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart but nothing has been heard from Governor Tener's intentions concerning the encampment next year, is the only following.

That the last division camp here it was freely stated that it would be the last that Gettysburg would see.

Similar rumors had followed other encampments here, but nothing of a definite character was said to them. At one or more of the brigade camps last summer, the men showed a desire to come to Gettysburg in 1915 and it is said that the Governor is positively does not mean the loss of Gettysburg as a military camp, but that it would scarcely seem to be a likely thing that the encampment will be removed all the material sent to-day if it is not intended that it will in all likelihood have to be shipped back again in the summer.

WOMEN TO HUNT

Two Ladies Secure Permits to Hunt Deer.

County Treasurer Spangler up to this time has issued no less than seventeen permits to hunt deer, and out that many 1914 license tags. Two permits were issued to the women, Mrs. Moses Bair, of Gettysburg, and Mrs. Noel, of Hanover.

VIVID STORY OF ANTWERP'S FALL

Looking Down on Historic City Again and Again Lost Week.

LIKE A HIDEOUS NIGHTMARE

Correspondent Se Sepiele Days and Nights on the Frontier During Bombardment—Refugees Flee—Ashen, Dutch Villagers of Remodeled Surrendered Kingdom.

The horrors of Antwerp's fall are told by a London Daily Chronicle correspondent, who, during the country of a Belgian officer, was able to ascend to the roof of the cathedral and see that potaz of wreckage looked down upon the scene in the city.

All the southern portion of Antwerp appeared to be a flaming mass, says the correspondent. Whole streets were ablaze, and flames were rising in the air to the height of twenty and thirty feet. In another direction I could discern through my glasses dimly in the distance the heavy outlines of the attacking German forces, rushing pouring of the city, and the living never to it in the dark. At that moment I overall say the enemy's front line was within four miles of Antwerp.

From my elevated position on the cathedral, one also of the great all around me. The sight was like a hideous nightmare. How long the spectacle one regard I cannot say, for I saw neither the beginning nor the end of it, but while I watched its progress it seemed to represent the effort of what a fire was capable of.

After watching for some considerable time the processes of destruction that lay unrolled all around me I came down from our post of observation on the cathedral roof. But I only remained I reached the street a 25 centimeter shell exploded in the neighborhood shop between the Place Verte and the Place Meir. It was one of those explosive shells, and the shop, a wood and furniture, immediately burst into flames.

Its Way to Check Fires.

The city by this time was almost deserted, and no attempts were made to extinguish the fires that had broken out all over the southern part of the city. Indeed, there were no means of desires to do so.

The reservoir has probably been emptied, was cut of and as this was the city's main source of supply, indeed practically its only source, great opportunities were left. It had plenty of city was thereby menaced, for there was danger of a general conflagration.

Happily airplane Antwerp was spared this night's terror. It had plenty of other sorts, and some of these I expect saved when other less fortunate cities. I made my way to the western section of the city, where there was a railway at the rate of five a minute. With great difficulty and not a little peril I got as far as the La Malerie.

It was obviously impossible to proceed further, and so I received my stereo-ed the quay. As I was passing the Avenue de Keyser a shell burst in the twenty yards of me, and I was knocked down by the force of the explosion.

I had not yet quite recovered when I was beginning to a place of safety, it there were one, when a shell burst by years of age, almost half naked, rushed out of a house opposite and fell by. He had gone mad.

A House in Refugees.

When the people of Antwerp had to fly at midnight in front of the advancing human and to the death march of bombing gone before, patiently awaiting the like of last resistance, and for the majority that last hope was soon demolished.

Though Roosebael is little more than a village, it is an important railway junction, communicating with Brussels and, with a station nearly as large as that in the rest of the city, which is beside the frontier traffic it became to that clearing house for refugees. It is estimated that nearly 250,000 have passed through there on the last few days. thence to be distributed to over England.

The townspeople and troops alike received themselves and did all they could to help.

We must write Roosebael high in the list of places that have been ennobled by love and mercy, and as Antwerp has received many refugees from the end sights on the frontier none is more touching.

Whatever For Wounded Soldiers.

Mr. Rhondda, a Party surgeon, it was the Belgian Red Cross Society, which was the first to arrive at the front. Its work was splendidly organized, and the men who did the early hours on the battlefield were beyond praise. Then came the Belgian Field Ambulance Corps, which did splendid work, and after that the British Red Cross Society.

EASY WAR "MISSIONS" FOR INFLUENTIAL FOREIGNERS

Many of Them Serving Country Without Doing Any Fighting.

The number of soldiers and citizens of belligerent countries who have visited New York on "missions" from their governments is surprisingly large, and one such as to attract attention from those who have to deal with hotels, clubs, clubs persons of title and without and the number of the soldiers and sailors among whom they have not been required to fight or fight.

"These men should not necessarily be looked upon as deserters," says a New York Times reporter. "Some are convalescents from wounds, but many are well settled with living in the Unit-ed States and have been here for a time, well for an family that I have to do with is one of these. I can say I should return. Perhaps some any returned to the front, but others have left their homes and fight for their country. However, that is not for me. No the information relative interviews. A communication is received by the consul of the country to which the soldier belongs, and he is informed that he is to report at such and such a time. Then they have been on a government pay list, and they receive their instructions. They will have served their country without going to war."

She frankly said she had proved up on the land and that it was not hers.

She confessed she had made assertions that she had lived there and had resorted to make that proof on the claim, but declared that she had not done so. Patient government she says she has been troubled.

FERRATA A NOTED DIPLOMAT

Late Papal Minister of State Won Re-spect as He Rosein in Force.

Cardinal Ferrata, late Papal Secretary, papal secretary of state, was regarded as one of the most accomplished men in the College of Cardinals. He was born in Rome, the son of the secretary of state of Cardinal Antonelli, who was also a Cardinal Sampolla. The appointment of Ferrata to Cardinal Rampolla's place was a surprise to many, but Cardinal Ferrata had to visit the United States and succeeded Mgr. Satolli as the successor of Pius X. for his appointment.

Probably Cardinal Ferrata's best diplomatic work was done at Paris, where he was the cause for its peace. During his stay there he brought about a friendly understanding between the Government and the Vatican.

He was prominently mentioned as a successor to Cardinal Merry Del Val, Papal Pope.

PUBLIC MEETING FOR NEW SOCIETY

Those Interested in Formation of Choral Society will Meet Thursday. Will Supplant Other Inactive Organizations.

Thursday evening, October 22, has been announced for the first public meeting called to organize a choral society in the town. Preliminary meetings by local music lovers have been held, and so much interest manifested that the promoters feel the organization to take the place of the old Choral Society, Shakespeare Oratorio Society and the Chautauqua Choral Union.

The meeting next Thursday evening will be open to all who are interested in this new project. The interest of local talent in Edwardsville is well recognized and it is believed that a society of appreciable size can be secured which will give several recitals during the fall and winter months. It is the intention that the first presence in the town of such an organization will contribute largely toward the securing of high grade musical entertainments, which have not appeared here last season.

According to the present plans of the promoters of this new society, a director will be secured from among the many music teachers in the city at time or another, have had experience in the west of music, and the society will be instructed in securing some one of this character.

It is believed that the interest is sufficiently great to warrant securing a large attendance at the first general meeting and a lively membership series of entertainments during the following months.

CITIZENS' BAND SORELY MISSED

Did not Appear in Saturday's Parade and Membership is Censured while Farmers' Day Committee also Receives Blame.

Those who look on the gloomy side of things failed to see the great success of Saturday's Farmers' Day and the good behind-only the impressible fellows of the Citizens' Band and the committee on arrangements are kicking because the parade was the concern in the afternoon. Both bodies have been severely criticised and censured, setting forth their arguments, but of the two the band has prepared the following:

Last year the Citizens' Band furnished the music for Farmers' Day parade, being informed by the committee in charge they had no money and were cheerfully played without a murmur. At the time at that, instead of being short of money the band had a good deal left which the committee put in their treasury.

This year the band was asked to furnish music for nothing, the committee in charge of music declaring again they had no money for the band. The band refused, for what reason? They gave away $150.00 in prizes. Would it not have been nice if they had offered a prize to the band? It is not meant to criticise the committee in charge as I think they deserve a great deal of credit as the day was a great success, but I desire to explain the band's side of the question as there have always two sides.

It is no easy proposition keep a band together for the whole season. As a member it is all out and nothing in. For the last two years the most money any member received for his services was $10 and that was on Decoration Day, the Fifth Anniversary, were, for the last four months, the band has been practicing on their time and try to pay the leader, one of the members, $5.00 per week, which is $5.00 per week. The Band Boys are all poor, the average time of $125. If any citizen who is wishing does not band out playing on Farmers' Day can tell the band boys that they will be glad to practice to play for nothing every time anything is going on, they are ready to help boost.

It has been the opinion of some people that the band are paid for playing for G. A. R. Post on the 30th of May. This is not correct, they do their services free and are glad to do so. Decoration Day, two or three years ago when there was no band to play the G. A. R. Post marched to the Hanover Band on the 30th.

The Other Side.

The Farmers' Day committee states, on its side of the argument, that the band was paid and declared last year that they would ask no money for their services, the Citizens' Band were told that the band organization would have to be treated alike with the other bands and no distinction after the finances were settled. The committee has also stated that before last year's celebration, as that organization was in debt, it was a justifiable contention for not being paid.

This year when a request for the band's services was made, the band was told that the committee had no money available for them and that they could not pay for the music if they wanted to. The band asked $20 for their services, which is very low, and they then declined to play.

The committee also protested to the band that they drew practically all of the support from the business men of town and that they were the last body of people for whom they should expect favors. It is also shown that they did not charge to play for the G. A. R. Post on the 30th, or the Playground Association band for the same day and they did not receive any support from any of these, while the people that went to church on Sunday the large contributors to their support.

Some of the members of the band agreed with the committee, but the majority did not and there was no music.

Hats the Queen of Baldness.

Baldness is a matter of headgear. The dowager queen of England agreed on this. Her grace had been previously, that, to save himself of the hats they wear. It is true that women wear bigger and often heavier hats than men, but they attach them in their hair and not to their scalps, hence they permit ventilation and do not encourage baldness. A man's hat is with their hair, tight-fitting and his scalp presents an air to which his hair is denied vessels all spread for the benefit.

Her Husband Died.

At a dinner party given to advocates of woman's suffrage in Boston there were thirteen seated at the table. One of the ladies spoke of it laughingly, but mother said it foreboded death. In one month she was in the grave and two weeks after my husband followed. Mother's prophecy was fulfilled and died instantly. —Chicago Tribune.

Victrola Parts of Life.

Life, no doubt, is paved with enjoyments, but we must all expect times of trouble. We are born crying, live complaining and when these cease it is an indication that we expect to have some one to act which will, at any rate to some extent soothe the aggrieved. Even mothers—Sir John Lubbock.

Remarkable Physician.

In one of the camps on the shore of Lake Superior there is a Chippewa Indian 70 years old who is still practicing his native medicine. He is a man of animal. The roots have been gathered by him in the forests and fields and the other is heightened by plant which he has used for years.

To Withstand Extinguisher.

Reinforced concretebuilt has been erected in every large city in the domestic districts of Italy, where all new buildings are being erected under strict supervision with respect to their ability to resist earthquake shocks. Professor Omori, the Japanese earthquake, has estimated that 95 per cent of the deaths in the great Messina earthquake of 1908 would have been prevented if the buildings had been properly constructed.

FARMERS' DAY THE BEST EVER

This Year's Celebration Brings out More and Better Products than on Either Preceding Day. Exhibits Remarkably Fine.

Eclipsing completely the notable successes of the Farmers' Day celebrations of the past two years, the Adams County residents flocked to Gettysburg on Saturday by the hundreds—yes, by the thousands—bringing with them the very best of the products of farm, orchard, garden, and kitchen. The displays in the various business houses far exceeded those seen at many a county fair.

Never have Adams County people prepared a more remarkable display of vegetables. Premiums of rarey variation, and the best of their kind, were shown in number of the stores. Mammoth pumpkins, beets, cabbage, tomatoes, and turnips were attractively arranged, a striking testimonial to the skill of the farmer and his wife in growing the best the garden soil afford.

As might be expected, the fruit display was the largest ever. Apples free many orchards, perfect in every particular. Highly polished, from the hand of the orchardist, purple and beautifully formed, were shown in a dozen or more varieties. Pears were offered for single apples, for plates, for baskets and crosscuts of the fruit, with the result that dozens of different kinds of this luscious fruit County product were brought in by unceasing residents of the low-lying ridge near Gettysburg and those some distance away.

Tall stalks of corn, long ears of the golden grain, wheat of different varieties, oats and other products of the soil interesting displays at places of business. Here potatoes showed to wheat, the seed for which had cost him $5 a bushel. Over-sized specimens grains with which they had experimented and been successful.

And then came the fine, clear jellies, the luscious preserves, the canned fruits and other products of the kitchen. Cakes, beautifully labeled and beautifully iced, were brought in in abundance. Candies were shown at all the stores. Butter prints displayed scores of rolls of golden yellow butter well moulded, and then there were those were so distributed that every part of town had its share in the big one day fair.

And then there were the articles of fancy work for which premiums were offered, the many fine needle effects and other things to interest the visitors. Genuine enjoyment was in store for those who did not have any real interest in the displays could go about from one business house to another trying their luck at numerous things, the number of needs of a pumpkin, the amount of shoes or pieces of cash in a window, the number of pieces of candy on a large pile, and many other schemes provided to entertain Gettysburg's guests of the day.

Individual displays, not in competition for prizes, were among the interesting features of the day. Mrs. Emanuel Smith was on hand again with a beautiful assortment of flowers and vegetables for which his garden near town has become famous. He was centrally located and visited by the throngs all day long.

William B. Mellhenny had an elaborate display of honey and bees in the rear at the Eckert corner of the Square. He had many varieties on hand and the beautiful bees attracted a great deal of attention.

The fun violence increased before dawn bringing with them their exhibits and they were kept busy all afternoon by others. Every train was crowded and some of the cars were filled almost to suffocation. All roads had to Gettysburg and many of the autos could be seen from every direction ascending the streets to the county seat for the big fall celebration. They found enough entertainment to keep them busy the entire day, and the effort soon partook of the nature of a reunion, for many of the visitors saw friends here with whom they had not come in contact for many months.

Much interest centered in the parade, the first of its kind held in Adams County in many years. According to The Times going to press early this morning, the parade was a big feature of the day will be given on Tuesday, together with the prize winners.

Charged with speeding his automobile on battlefield avenues and driving it on sidewalks, Ralph Hoffman, 21, of Cincinnati, Ohio, will have to appear before Justice of the Peace Attorney General of the United States, on Monday morning, according to reports of this official by reason of the affidavit not taking a residence of Pennsylvania. Hoffman was arrested by Mounted Policeman Ellis Reed, who entered the offense several months ago but could not be found until he was run down miles an hour on Confederate avenue. Reed, who is a member of the James B. Aumes, but started off with a complete disregard of the caution.

TO ENFORCE LAW

State Troopers Will See that Game Laws are Obeyed.

Officers Gearhart, Eiler and Jackson of the Pottsville barracks reached Gettysburg Saturday with a fine team, riding from Pottsville by way of Hollidaysburg in the storm. They reached Gettysburg Saturday afternoon Friday and at once set about to familiarize themselves with the roads they will serve there. They reported many hunters out all along the line of their rides. They make up a determined force to enforce the game laws. The provisions of the hunters' law are most rigidly enforced.

BEST STORIES OF THE BIG WAR; ITS HORRORS VIVIDLY DEPICTED

One Man's Thoughts and Feelings on Eve of Expected Execution.

Graphic Paragraphs Found in the Nawa Dispatches From the Front.

AMONG the most thrilling stories of the war to come to hand is one told in the Geneva, Switzerland, Journal de Geneve. It was written recently residing in Brussels who, when the Germans entered the city, was arrested as an extremely suspected by a correspondent. Subsequently he was arrested as a British spy and condemned to be shot. He was confined in the jail at Louvain, awaiting execution. He writes:

"I was in my cell when they told me I was to be executed at 5 o'clock. I knew I was going to my death. I was not bound, but I was surrounded by four soldiers with bayonets fixed and pointed at me. I was taken through the corridors of the prison, down the stairs, and into the courtyard. Here I was placed against a wall, and the soldiers stood in front of me. I could see their every movement. They stood at attention, and then they presented their rifles. I was ordered to kneel down, and I did so. I felt calm. At 5:00 a. m. I was ordered to get up and entered the room. One had a spade and the other had the shovel with which they scrapelime over things. They played the joke in the room and left the door open so they left.

"I looked out across the courtyard to the wall, where one of them took me. I saw the sentinels on the battlements, the second man using the heads in the courtyard. I saw the sky, and I saw my own shadow. I saw the sun shining on my own grave.

Planned How He'd Die.

"To make my death less ignominious in the eyes of my wife and children in the room until I heard the firing squad. I had decided that I would not be blindfolded.

"Even before I obtain a negro soundsed everybody one. The guards put on their overcoats, and I heard the rattled five minutes, which seemed to me like five hours. Then I told the guard rooms to tell he. I wondered if my wife and children would ever hear of my fate as an artic. I wondered how the news of my death would reach them. I thought of a Richard, in Brussels, formerly pr Ambassador to Washington.

"Thereon recounts his further harrowing experiences in the prison, and the days of agonizing suspense he endured before his release.

"Greatest of Follies."

There has been a great publicity in Paris over the concerning incidence of the Russian Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch which had been furnished by German sources, and which was subsequently denied by French troops. It seems that the Grand Duke, who commanded the Russian army in the Caucasus, met Enver Bastoa between the 11th and the 16th of December.

A German artillery officer wrote:

"Enver is the greatest folly of all that. Comparies of 250 men in the Caucasus, and there are companies of thirty men, and there are companies of 15. He did not command them, he only had the honor of being disarmed."

Another officer who comes from Mesopotamia found a Lieutenantcolonel lying in a hut with a yard of his sword drawn as chasseur in a hotel in Paris. He had been there for a week with his acquaintances.

"I am stupid," he said, "this war. You and I were happy when we were young officers. Now I am old and fat. I have been sent to fight with an old sword. He died from dysentery and the sack of the French soldier who lost his own commanding officer."

A Semiobstreperous Town.

A correspondent describes the German trenches on the Aisne as a whole constructions, like streets and new houses, with electric lights in the streets and thoroughfares, side streets and tree lanes where officers walk in the air and hundreds of thousands of men six. Behind the front line are the villages, all that from a little way down the hill are in ruins and without anything to do of its existence, unless it were the German soldiers who have been established slightly above the surface of the earth.

Acts of Austrian Courage

Berlin, a German correspondence with fifty men, held at bay from a camp of Austrians, which numbered over a hundred. It was a trap and fought them a day. At 3 p. m. the Austrians in the fixed valley after valley until only their rear remained behind.

Corporal Mensel, awarded a medal for courage, remained in the rear as a true for three days, not resting down to the ground exhausted.

Each time he shot down a Russian officer he would call out in better tones: "Another one!" Finally, when he had shipped of twelve and eight, charged a dozen Russians close to the bowel, and all his horse as he fell and exchanged it for his own, which was in it. Then his sword sheathed the fighting, he was awarded and shot a German through the head."

Wife In Air, Saw Battle.

A letter from an officer of the British gave flying corps, describing a view he had recently had of the battle of the west of Paris, says:

"From 8 height of 8,000 feet I saw a sight which I hope it will never be my lot to see again. The whole country was there literally cut to ribbons all along the north of Lens. It was marvelous watching hundreds of shells bursting in the air, and the dust of the falling fire miles and then to see the German guns firing."

Heroes Short "Goofy"

Thirty minutes of a British field battery were left to fight their way among the utmost certain death, called out, "Goofy fellows," in their vernacular in the reserve line. Two minutes later every man was out of action.

Thirty more went to the front, with the same fate. Seventy-five. The gunners shells were falling thickly behind the battery and killed or wounded every man serving the guns.

Fight Through Bandages.

More interesting statements gather from the wounded who crowd the hospitals and prisoners have been permitted to leave Germany. An army doctor writes:

"S—Terrible hungry, and a number of brand in sight days."

"Sept. 10.—Nothing to eat for three days. Have terrible headache."

A Saxons soldier inscribed this:

"Sept. 11.—Have had no food since three times. This evening we had potatoes and coffee. Very hungry."

The Germans prepared a trap for the British by withdrawing from the highway to a great depth and planting mines and bombs which were connected with trenches and earth.

Church Closed.

German officers and soldiers in plain clothes have been arrested in Belgium and found by the military courts under martial law and sentenced to death.

Among those executed was Gabriel Dean in a church tower, this person was found to be in communication by radio measurements of the inside of the church. He was found to be in possession of his friends in terms of espionage. He was executed. The church was not less it seized it is prejudice to the military operations of the British artillery at the time of their arrival. The church was closed for divine service quarters and still Soldiers Had Kid Telephone.

"Leaving out of the windows of a German military train when it stopped at Dusseldorf, a British correspondent saw a German soldier bending over a wire which ran from the train to the nearest station. He seemed to be attempting to repair the telephone wire. Then he called out:

"'Say,' I said to one of my companions, 'that fellow is talking to his sweetheart.' He moved his hands gently among the wires, and then he spoke tenderly.

Rising Of the Sun.

From the Chronicle of the present time, as statisticians and historians tell us, there have been more than two hundred and forty wartime years. Up to the middle of the nineteenth century no one thought seriously of the world ever being at peace. Then arose the idea of universal peace, and in a few years a number equal to almost five wartime years had been spent in discussion of the theme.—Christian Herald.

TO-MORROW NIGHT ENDS BIG OFFER

So Many Active Contestants are Working on this Offer that no One Can Afford to Be Less than their Very Best.

To-morrow night at nine o'clock the big special offer, which is in force, will close. After that there will be no extra votes allotted on any of the new subscriptions and they will be given credit by the regular vote scale the same as the old.

This has been a great opportunity for the hustlers of the campaign and nearly everyone has taken full advantage of it. New subscriptions have been coming in by the score and each day thousands of the regular votes have been written for different contestants. The offer to date has been the biggest success possible and the extra votes received during this period will have a marked effect on the final count the last night of the campaign.

And now, with but one day more of this special offer left, contestants should make the greatest effort of all. No matter how encouraging they may have been thus far, no one can afford to waste a minute of this day. Here goes up a single opportunity of getting some of these extra votes. There are two more prizes to contend for in this race to permit of anyone letting up in their efforts for a single moment, and, as soon as they do so, they will only drop behind the rest and see their chances of winning and waste all of the good start that they have made.

No doubt, up to the very last minute of this offer. Make up your mind that to-morrow is going to be the biggest day of all and that you are going to let a single subscription get away from you. Tell your friends that if you want their help on this day most of all and show them what they can will mean. Let the end of this offer find you with every one of the 1,000 ballots that it is possible for you to get, and then you will know that you are still in the race and that you have as good a chance of winning one of the prizes as anyone on the list.

ARE EXAMINING SCHOOL PUPILS

County Physicians Looking after Physical Welfare of Hundreds of Young Children. Also Examine Boarderships of Institutes.

Ten or twelve physicians of the county are now busily engaged in the annual physical examination of the pupils in the various townships. Dr. Calvin Andrews, of this city, began in Gettysburg and has completed all of the boys except those in the High School.

Many of the school districts of the county have had similar inspections during the past year and it is found that scores of the children are suffering from one or more defects. The physicians are given a special attention by the inspectors and then the results are put down in the proper authorities at Harrisburg who, in turn, notify the parents as to the defects found in their children. Many of these defects, if taken and the suggestions made and thus to save their future usefulness and prevent trouble of the same sort.

The thorough examination of the pupils these inspectors will also be expected to make a thorough investigation, as to the sanitary conditions of buildings, to inquire into the source of water supply and the sanitary arrangements. Defects found here are also reported and the owners are expected to do much to safeguard the pupils attending the public schools of the state.

The effect of these annual examinations has been highly satisfactory according to the physicians. Many children, learning of the appearing visit of the doctors, will have their defects corrected by their eyes examined and glasses secured where necessary, and in other cases may find them all right when before they were not.

In some of the townships of the county this examination will not be accepted, for one reason or another, and the doctor's report is required upon the school board whether or not the service shall be given.

EPIDEMIC EFFECT FELT AT COLLEGE

Full Book Dedicated Sublimus in Hurriedness on Result of Typhoid Fever Contracted before Coming to Gettysburg.

With the attendance of Elmhurst, the star fullback on the Gettysburg College football team, the effect of the typhoid fever epidemic at Lehigh University is felt keenly. Elmhurst is a player is believed to have contracted the disease while at the Bethlehem school before he came to Gettysburg.

Lehigh's football and varsity students at Lehigh have fallen victims to the disease. It is stated that Jim Lee, second, Warren Heon, dying in the Allentown Hospital; Ralph Thomas, Bichead, who is from Harrisburg, are reported at Lehigh at the opening of the term in September but, a few days later, decided in charge and left to Gettysburg.

His prowess on the foot ball field at the latter school and he made a good run on the regular team without any training. He played the game Saturday and was always a tower of strength. Elmhurst is a junior at Lehigh where the Allright game was especially worthy of note. Shortly afterward he was taken ill and was rushed to the Harrisburg Hospital.

He has developed typhoid fever and, allowing for the time it takes the disease to develop, must have received the germs during his short stay at Bethlehem before he came to Gettysburg Thursday and said his visit to the Lehigh city was a most delicious a large part of the time. The father removed all of his possessions from the house and left for a point unknown.

It is said the epidemic at Lehigh began through infection that came from the water supply. Many of the students who furnished milk to the school, were discovered to have typhoid in their abominable shops. The inspectors found that the milk cans were filled at horse near the barn, being eaten up by chickens. The drainage led into a stream at a point from which the farmer washed his milk cans.

$00 AT FUNERAL

Large Assemblage at Services for Andrew Lott.

Eight hundred persons on Thursday attended the funeral of Andrew Lott, Gettysburg's oldest citizen, who died in East Berlin, from the effects of a hitch from a horse. Brief services at the home were conducted by Rev. Dr. F. K. Barnett, Abbottstown, and Rev. Dr. Wm. Rice, Gettysburg.

The funeral party then proceeded to the Evergreen Cemetery where the Sunday School room was thrown open for the remainder of the services by the church the following ministers officiated: Rev. Dr. Barnett, Rev. Dr. Rice, Rev. J. B. Lau, Manchester, Md.; the Rev. H. M. Mihlon, East Berlin, and the Rev. C. L. Baker, East Berlin. The active pallbearers were members of the choir of the East Trinity Lutheran church, of which the deceased was a member. They were: L. B. Lau, Orpheus Myers, John Jacobs, Lawrence C. Fry, Harry Lau and E. B. Reynolds.

Members of the borough council, of which the deceased was one, were the honorary pallbearers. They were: H. C. Spangler, H. L. Miller, S. C. Slagle, John Trostle and W. D. Myers. Interment was made in the Union cemetery.

SPRINGS ARE DRY

Drought in the Pigeon Hills Causes Farmers Inconvenience.

The several rains of the past week have not relieved the effects of the dry drought in the Pigeon Hills. For the last month or more residents and farmers have been forced either to haul water for domestic purposes, or water, or haul it to barrels. The rains have helped wonderfully and will replenish the springs that had failed, instead reports are to the effect that the springs are dry and that springs is becoming less each week. Unless there is a heavy fall of rain the present drought will be a general one throughout the mountainous region of the Pigeon Hills. Although the creeks have been swollen by the recent rains, water did not penetrate to more than a few feet in the hillsides, the water draining to the low lands.

BOW FIRES FROM COAST TO COAST

Interior Could Follow Lincoln Highway Route by Light of Fires All the Way from New York to San Francisco.

A blazing line of bonfires will mark a night's fierce route of excitement on the night of October 31st, when the cities and towns all along the Lincoln Highway from coast to coast will celebrate the successful completion of a great undertaking.

Celebrations are planned in over 1,000 communities and cities for the Hallowe'en and these include in almost every one a huge bonfire or immense piles of wood and brush as well as the lighting of gas tars.

So general will be the observance of the first anniversary of the dedication of this great route that an aviator, should his machine be swift enough, could almost fly after the rear of the route from New York to San Francisco the trail of flaming fires which will express the sentiment of the patriotic living along the line.

On the stroke of ten the match will be applied to the piles of fuel and the whistles and the tooting of horns the blare of 10,000 fire and tug boats will announce that the Lincoln Highway celebrations were held.

Several hundred scouts of Hillsdale Pennsylvania towns to the desert regions of Nevada and the mountains of the West, word has come that the Lincoln Highway will this year set the pace even the extravagant ovations of a year ago.

Parades are the popular means of celebration in several of the larger towns and thousands of automobiles, gayly decorated and filled with men, women and children will, at the same time, will thread their way along the Lincoln Highway. Great parades at large cities and thousands of the automobiles will pass in line that will be draped with the national colors and with streamers of bunting, colored smoke, and signs.

The first day in November, as it was last year, the clergy in thousands of churches of all denominations, scattered in the 3,389 miles from New York to San Francisco, took as the theme for their sermons that day the man Lincoln, his works, his character, his patriotism and the great highway which he left upon the nation, and which the nation has built in his honor.

The idea of the Lincoln Highway Association, through its national headquarters, has again asked that the day be observed as one of the real world worship of further discussion.

"That's a smart thing I've found out," said Mrs. Corntossel, "about the way to get a husband to do anything. What's that doctor's bill?" "Fifty dollars, ma'am." "Then you kindly tell your husband he's got to have an operation performed on him."—Washington Star.

The Perfect Standard.

It is a question in my own mind whether the standard of right and wrong, and the standard of perfection, is not the highest standard in the world, and the highest standard in the universe, and whether the same right of interpreting it as we have of interpreting anything else.—Ruskin.

CASH PRIZES IN THE BIG PARADE

Judges Find Difficult Task in Picking Best Entrants from Saturday's Demonstration Floats Show Novel and Interesting Ideas.

Highly entertaining and creditable was the Farmers' Day parade on Saturday afternoon, witnessed by a crowd of visitors estimated as none too big well into the thousands. Led by Chief Marshal Tawney and a large corps of aides, the parade formed in the western part of town and proceeded via Centre Square over Chamberlain's large street and then over the route as listed and announced.

The final division of the parade was made up of interesting pictures. Elaborately decorated floats, representing various local organizations, were entered in this section. The Band of Hope, grouped about a white May pole, with white streamers, was third and songs as the parade moved through town. The Presbyterian Camp Fire Girls had a beautifully arranged woodland scene. The Biglerville Poultry Show with two mammoth "human fowls" advertised their competitive exhibit in Sue shape and the local Softdrink Party had the most elaborate float of the parade. A large wagon drawn by four fine horses, with yellow and white trappings, held many of the Gettysburg aphorists of the cause representing the various states.

Other parade novelties were Mott and Jeff by automobile, the Ice and Storage Company turnout, the Attlesboro Refining Company's display of some odor and amusing, gaily decorated. The town which received the most liberal applause was the prize and cart of Allen B. Plank accepted by his little son and daughter dressed in two old farmers and taking a load of fine country vegetables "to market."

The first division contained a large number of fine horses entered as single teams. The judges, Dr. W. E. Wolf, of Littlestown; Harry Biddle, of Bonneauville; and McKnightstown; and Charles Bardell, of Gettysburg, had a hard task in picking the winners and rewarded the first prize of $15 to Luther Hinkle and the second of $5 to Barner.

For the best span of driving horses $10 was awarded to George Bender and $5 to Mr. Mateer. The best 2-hour horse team $15 to J. B. Zimmerman; for the best horse mules $10 to Simon Bixler; and for the best single pony team $5 to C. Musselman. Several of the prizes were not awarded.

It is estimated that no less than one hundred babies were entered for the baby parade prize offered by the local furniture companies. The mothers and babies were all assembled in the yard at the rear of the Bushman tailoring shop and were a most interesting sight. Roland Main, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Martin, of Breckenridge street, was voted as the judges, Miss Harrell, of Biglerville; Mrs. D. W. Woods, of Fairfield, and Mrs. E. C. Tyson, of Flora Dale.

D. Minnich, of Littlestown, was the apple judge of the day and the 10 other judging contests were as follows:

Farm Products—D. D. Sheely, Abbottstown; Allen Danner, Cashtown; Avner Weibert, Fairfield.

Cakes, pastry, candy, etc., Mrs. H. H. O'Neal, Gettysburg; Mrs. A. L. Wagaman, Bonneauville; Mrs. Lloyd Donaldson, Fairfield.

Fancy work, pictures, etc., Miss Laura Spengler, Gettysburg; Miss Mildred Gutshall, and Miss Lina Orrtanna.

AMERICANS TELL DRAMATIC STORIES OF FLIGHT TO LONDON

Big Paris Hotels Closed, and Banks Pay No Money. Notes Confiscated.

Thousands in Distress, and Women Exposed to Bitter Hardships.

THE horrors of war have been brought to the doors of thousands of Americans stranded in Europe. It is estimated that between 200,000 and 300,000 Americans, most of whom are on the Atlantic seaboard, tourists are in the troubled countries for the summer. Of these, at least about 75,000 schoolteachers and students are in France, Belgium, Switzerland, Germany and other countries. These people are poverty stricken, but many are stranded because of the failing down of banks, or because of exchanging paper for money. Letters of credit, checks and everything now of the kind, good under ordinary circumstances, have been worthless since the war scare started. Cash is the thing needed. The task of transferring the United States is here to be undertaken, and it is a big one, as it will sooner or later be needed by the London, Paris and Berlin banks. Even seeing from the French capital there are 2,000 letters waiting for mail boxes, and pensions Americans by the thousands are waiting for the return of the ship.

Refugees from Holland, Belgium and France were in equally desperate straits.

A Desperate Situation.

Most of the people returned from Paris had lost all except their head baggage. The people were left with but a few cents and pushed on anxious pilgrimages to the seaports, leaving all behind.

Mrs. G. Jason Waters and her daughter were among those who arrived in London. Mrs. Waters said:

"It was not our trouble, but our fears that made us leave. The incident protests changed 9 francs for $1 at Cherbourg.

"It was a pitiful sight to see hundreds of Americans arriving at the luxury seeking help. Women were crying. Others were trying to keep their sadness secret with which to leave. Many of the Americans who are stranded in Paris is desperate. Some of them are without enough food to get by."

Chaos In Paris.

Louis Reinton of New York, who arrived at Cherbourg Cross with his wife, said:

"I never was in one such a scene again on the Exit to get aboard the boat. Thousands of Americans were at the Ritz and decided to leave Paris for London. Everybody thought that it would be the last boat to be served by the Cherbourg route. It was said that the hotel would have to reply to the Americans there. The boat was to be started on the morning and to make connections with Southampton steamers.

"I had no money except useless 100 francs notes. I had to borrow 20 francs to breakfast at the Ritz. We learned to our surprise that, in addition to automobile, in which he intended to go to Paris, he had to take a train to England. The brothers gave Hayman-Rice 1,000 francs. He said to the brothers, 'That's the best, we've cleared.'"

"Just then Reginald C. Vanderbilt climbed in his car and drove off with Prince (84,000). We can't give you 1,000 francs, because we have only 100."

"We went out and found that Hayman-Rice's automobile, which he had carried to France, had been commandeered by the French government and was in the stables and auto bazaar a little while ago."

"We finally made our way to the Gare du Nord, where we got on the trains and fight our way to the platform. The train was over crowded. Everybody cried, cursing men, women and children. The train was filled with compartment for my party. When we got to it we found the compartment was there. The corridors of the train and the lavatories were filled with people. A compartment was a lady in waiting to the Queen of Spain. She was crying in fear of being sent at sea route.

"The train left hundreds of persons. It was at one minute before 10 when the baggage is registered. We had to leave it. We left it with the Cook's agent. The channel boat was crowded. Everybody on the boat was hungry and thirsty."

A American woman, Mrs. Barnard Lister, arriving in London from Rotterdam, said:

"People are leaving there and are being cared for in the best way. Everything is quiet. Everything is orderly. We planned to go to Paris, but decided not to. We went to Rotterdam."

Refugees Unable to Obtain Tickets.

"There was consternation when we arrived at the station, as a ticket office was closed. Everybody was hungry. Many of the refugees were given up to the army."

"The last train left Paris at 9:30 with the night letters, and the manager at the Hotel Continental announced that he left behind, blocking the station yard and the entrance to the hotel."

"From La Touquet and Paris Plage, Boulogne received a train from Paris carrying 1,200 refugees, all filled with American citizens without enough to pay their fares. Many of them had to borrow money. One train only would come through the night, there would be a wait of several hours, and that was going for Boulogne without a stop."

"We held up the station master and his staff, and made them give us a special train and Tropical and were the Americans who received there and helped them to get away in this one train. The train consisted of two coaches and the private saloon, adding, 'Have you return before the 31st of July.' We have said there is room on the train you may have a place. We did not expect when we left."

"We had three checks. We owe automobiles piled high with trunks and baggage and with weekly American hurrying toward Boulogne."

Left Without Money.

A. W. Dely was appointed judge of election in Huntingdon District, Number Two, to fill the vacancy caused by the removal of Roy A. Delp.

Harry H. Dicks and J. E. Miller, students at the State College of Gettysburg, were appointed by Governor Brumbaugh as notaries public over Willoughby Run.

FELL FROM SCAFFOLD

Menallen Township Man Receives Very Painful Injuries.

Amos Grier, of Menallen township, sustained three broken ribs and was otherwise severely injured by a fall from the scaffolding at his home, a mile west of Gettysburg, on Friday. The accident occurred late Monday afternoon when Mr. Grier was assisting one of the workmen who were building an addition to the house. The ribs were broken when Mr. Grier fell on the folding, and a falling brick struck him on the head, but did not cut the scalp wound. Several physicians were summoned to attend Mr. Grier. His injuries, painful, are not considered serious.

TOOK SAVINGS

Money of Little Children Missing. Hired Man Disappears.

Disappearance of Charles Smith, who has been working at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Plank, of Bonneauville, and the theft of money, is connected with the theft of money from the savings banks of about $12 or $15. The loss was discovered by the children when at their home on Sunday after attending church. The money had been taken from hidden under some bed clothing in the room occupied by them. It is stated that the thief had some trouble finding them.

TOWN PEOPLE IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Granite Cap Scene Catches Machine of Kent Meats at Corner of Carlisle and Broadway. Charles Hartman Has Mishap on Hanover.

Striking the granite capstone over the culvert at the corner of Carlisle and Broadway Carlisle street Monday night, the automobile driven by Kent Meats was badly damaged and its occupants thrown out. Mr. Meats, who owns one of them, Robert McGilgan, was thrown to the side. He was not badly hurt.

The young men were returning from a ball game and failed to see the lights on the machine were not working properly. At any rate Mr. Meats guided the car over a Mitchell four passenger machine—into the heavy granite block. The front wheels were smashed to splinters and the car, thrown on the side, was otherwise damaged.

It was at first feared that Mr. McGilgan was badly hurt but further examination of his injuries were trivial though he suffers somewhat from shock.

This is the second accident that has occurred at this corner through automobiles striking the granite stones. The other took place some months ago when a delivery machine was considerably damaged.

The Chambersburg Valley Spirit reports a runaway and auto smash at the accident which befell Charles Hartman, Gettysburg merchant, at the Caledonia Bridge when his car, with his large Oakland car, into the Caledonia Bridge when he struck at the site of the old bridge while it is being torn down. The report says:

"Down the quiet old Greenfield-ville pike at a rapid rate of speed interested friends. Automobile sport is the delight of many and when spied, the country bares with zeal, hit and run. Mr. Hartman's machine made mud balls and make the rural eye quake in her dreams and beat the air with her fingers. Mr. Hartman was happy.

"There was one impediment. Hartman became acquainted with it. It was the Caledonia bridge. It sometimes is protect the traveler from trying to drive across it from one elsewhere. Along this stretch of timber—using a line of half dozen red lights. Hartman had passed none of these, only some as he couldn't fit all of them in his car. Some workmen picked the spectacles and his machine was in the air. The whole party would have been dashed over the bank into Conewago Creek, rolling water and big boulders below. It was a close call by death but it cannot be said that Mr. Hartman's narrow escape by the thought red lights on the bridge. Mr. Hartman is a true geocelyhip in these days when everybody is a motorist and he has struck a superior force which was not in evidence.

RATIONS TO FACE WORSE FOE YET

How Will Armies Bear the Rigors of Winter?

FACTOR IN FORMER WARS.

Has Science Resolved the Pests Where Cold Weather Can Be Disregarded in the Prosecution of Military Campaigns to the Ruin of Abatement of Activities in the Past.

When a new factor enters the European war—the cold of winter—the food ration will find a more particular, a more formidable enemy than the lessen of opposing nations. The first advance of winter has been felt already by the soldiers in trenches along the river Aisne. Chilly winds, following a wet week, sent a shiver through the bones of both forces.

More than anything else, says the Kansas City Star, cold weather will hamper the mobility of the armies. That already has begun to be evident. Some will have the added burden of greater supplies. Transport will not be able to cut loose from their advanced bases even for brief periods. Fuel, food and warmth will have to be provided at each step of a campaign. Here, as many task when soldiers are on the battle line.

Undoubtedly the general conflict of both armies have obvious preparations made to keep the suffering unnecessarily caused by winter at a minimum, but the greatest human endeavor cannot eliminate all hardship, even if an army is given a permanent residence and not compelled to settle spring.

Winter Had Them in Former Wars.

Whether the science of war has progressed to the point where winter can be disregarded is a question. It is not probable that it has, in almost all the wars since history began, the cold of winter has heralded a period of comparative inactivity by field armies while winter has forced hospitalization of the permanent camps and walk for warmer weather before active campaigning operations are started.

Napoleon had one brilliant campaign in the Revolutionary war by disregarding all the extreme dangers and actually attacking the Russians at Preuss. His army retreated from Moscow before the Christmas that year, but Napoleon's was forced to the retreat. The sufferings at Valley Forge grew to the formidable extent we all know of.

In the Crimean war fighting practically ceased with the first snow, on Nov. 5, 1854. The Russians retired from Sebastopol. In the Civil war night's permanent camp of investment ceased it.

In our civil war considerable fighting was done in the winter months, but on the more important campaigns began in the spring and ended when cold weather came.

Sherman's marches were made in the winter months, and even in that month the climate in the south is not as severe as in the north. Grant's campaigns began in the spring of 1864 and ended in April, 1865, except for the Petersburg and Richmond campaigns, and the following winter was active in blockading.

The Japanese advance on Mukden in 1904 was halted about the 1st of May, when weather by armies cold. Neither army was prepared to withstand the cold, and for a month the fighting forces lay inactive, resting after the long campaign. A few amendments were fought in October; then operations nearly halted until Feb. 19, when the Japanese army, attacked in force, carried the odd bastions, beats to advance.

The investment of Port Arthur has been effected by cold weather than the operations of field armies. The reasons for abrisen investing studies was build permanent camps, which were occupied by and the bodily warmth of a crowded barracks. In the open camps of the Russians in their own home. The Japanese army was not so favored. It was made on Nov. 1 Port Arthur sophisticated, after a series of assaults, had begings, beats to advance.

EDISON ON HOW TO KEEP SUBMARINE SUBMERGED

Process For Making Fresh Air Under Sea—Takes Oxygen From Water.

After studying the intricate mechanism, especially the electrical parts, of a submarine in the New York navy yard, Thomas A. Edison surprised his companions by declaring that the Diesel motor and Nat-Admiral Fletcher, submarine expert, by declaring that the Diesel motor

"It will not be long till you can keep a submarine under water indefinitely without coming up for air," Edison declared. "I am confident, in the near future, it will be possible to remain under water for days, one of his devices has been tested by the government with a view to installing it in submarines. It is a machine by which the air may be kept in vented for use in cold climates. The air is taken in by a pump and compressed into tanks and rubber to their coils. It is then treated with chemicals that remove the carbon dioxide, and is then ready for use. The chemicals are put in contact with the acid in the cell, thereby generating the gas which is used in the machine.

The Edison battery has been for the past two years in daily use and each of the cartridges of silver for the cathode or negative plate. The anode or positive plate comes in contact with the acid in the cell, thereby generating the gas which is used in the method of being sent out in the form of gas.

HAGERSTOWN HAS ITS WORST FIRE

Baldwin Hotel, Antietam Garage with Eighty Fine Cars, Antietam Fire Hall and National Guard Headquarters Burned.

Two fires at early hours Wednesday made the worst conflagration that Hagerstown has had in many years. The losses are estimated to reach a total of $400,000. The buildings destroyed are the following:

Antietam Garage, opposite Baltimore and Ohio railroad station. Contained eighty automobiles, all of which were destroyed. Stood two stories on second floor. Loss of building $40,000. Loss of automobiles $150,000.

Antietam Fire Company Hall. Adjoining garage. Headquarters of Company B, Maryland National Guard Totally destroyed. Loss $20,000.

Baldwin Hotel. Loss $200,000. Several stores in hotel building. Grove Brothers' men's furnishings; M. Brown Carnes, jeweler and smaller stores. Loss not computed.

Several other buildings were scorched somewhat. The post office was threatened and the Academy of Music in the rear of the Baldwin was saved with difficulty.

There were two separate and distinct fires. The first occurred about half past one o'clock when a man walked into the Antietam Garage and lighted a match. The place was evidently filled with gas of some sort for it immediately took fire and dense volumes of flames poured out. The man who caused the fire escaped with some difficulty and it was soon given the alarm. The Antietam Fire Company responded from their building adjoining and the whole city fire department was soon on the scene.

In the garage were many Hagerstown's best automobiles, several Pierce-Arrows and other high priced machines, while the place also had the agency for the Franklin car. The fire here and had a large stock of new cars on hand. The building was owned by O. D. Shelly and Harry E. Baker conducted the garage. A strong rain on the second floor of the building were put with it.

The progress of the flames was not stayed until the Fire Company Hall adjoining was beyond saving and the J. W. Myers wholesale grocery was also ablaze. It was saved together with the post office and other nearby buildings.

Scarcely had this fire been gotten under control when the historic Baldwin Hotel, some distance away, was found to be on fire. Hurry calls were sent for reinforcements and the firemen were rushed from both places. The fire at the hotel was started in the kitchen but from what cause is not known.

It spread rapidly through all parts of the building and one half of it was completely gutted while the remainder is so drenched with water that rebuilding will be necessary.

TOWN RESIDENTS TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. James Weygandt Finds Husband Dead in Bed. Thomas McCullough, Colored Veteran of the Civil War, Dies at his Home.

JAMES E. WEYGANDT

James E. Weygandt was found dead in bed at his home, 342 York street, by his wife, Wednesday, at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. He had evidently been dead for several hours.

For the past four or five years, Mr. Weygandt had been in failing health, dropsy with complications being the cause of his death. It is said, he was able to be about the house as usual on Tuesday, however, and when he retired for the night was apparently in his usual condition. No knowledge of any turn for the worse was had until Mrs. Weygandt went to his room Wednesday morning, to find that he had died during the night.

Mr. Weygandt was born a native of Gettysburg. He was born on November 23, 1844, and was accordingly 70 years, 11 months and 3 days of age. For a number of years he followed the trade of a tanner and was employed at the old Gilbert tannery. Later he was an employe at the Bosser furniture factory.

He leaves his wife who, before marriage, was Miss Laura Wolf. He also leaves the following children: Harry Weygandt, Miss Ruth Weygandt and Mrs. Joel Lutz, all residing in Gettysburg; also a sister, Mr. Joshua Bale, of Gettysburg, also survives.

Funeral services Saturday afternoon at one o'clock from his late home. Interment in Evergreen cemetery.

EXPENSIVE JOY PARTY

Leverings Types Chairman of Famous Banquet Committee at Columbus.

As chairman of the dinner committee of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce, Alumni Association, Lavering Types, of the Class of 1915, Academic of Gettysburg College several years ago, has been given a bill for $105 by the manager of the Columbus Hotel, which served the 1,200 dinners at the cross roads city on the Scioto Wednesday evening. The faculty and alumni of the college are said to be wonder what damage the bill represents.

Little has been written concerning the latter sort of affairs, but enough is said to warn a time for hilarious celebration. Glasses, china and tables all went down.

BRANCH MEETING

PAID FINE

Three Sons of Joseph Plank are Then Arrested.

Three sons of Joseph Plank, William, Charles, and Levi, were arrested upon information sworn before Justice of the Peace Spangler, for trespassing upon the lands of Jacob Bair, of Mountpleasant, before Squire Harnish, District Attorney Wible explained to the father that, while the neighbors accused the boys of not only trespassing but stealing, charges of trespass had been laid so the justice could let them off with a fine.

They were thoroughly lectured by the District Attorney and the father paid the costs amounting to $10.

Mrs. Frank Cole, of the "Narrows", and children, Mildred and Harold, spent a few days with her mother, Mrs. Annie Short recently.

Misses Elizabeth Hartman, of Hanover; Harry Ramer, Carrie Coder, Mrs. Ida Hartman and Mrs. Carl Hartzler, visited Miss Sara Stahle on Wednesday afternoon.

NEED CLOTHING AT MONT ALTO

Many Patients at Nearby Institution Suffer from Cold through Lack of Sufficient Wearing Apparel Children Need Clothing.

That clothing, shoes and stockings are needed by the patients at the Mont Alto State sanitorium is a report by the Rev. H. D. Speakman, chaplain.

Especially are the 100 or more little children at the sanitorium in great need of warm clothing and shoes and stockings for the winter, the chaplain says. Contributions of clothing, shoes and stockings or money for the purchase of same are urged. They may be sent to the Rev. H. D. Speakman, Mont Alto.

Dr. Speakman says, "There is a general impression that the State furnishes clothing for the tuberculosis sanitorium patients, but this is erroneous. The State provides shelter, food, care and treatment for the patients, but they must provide for their clothing. Many of the patients receive a home, but do not have a change of top or under clothing. To supply such patients with proper clothing and shoes, we must depend entirely on donations from churches, organizations and individuals.

"Up to the time the only money I have received for this purpose alone has been $75 given by a Washington man. With this money I was able to buy at wholesale prices, shoes and stockings for 100 children, and enough to go around by fer. It is pitiful to see children without shoes or clothes and shoes frequently several times too large. I am not asking for myself personally, however, though will do if we have sufficient to outfit our charges."

AUTO LICENSES

Officials Ave that Application on 1914 Blank is Void.

The automobile division of the state highway department announces that more than a thousand applications for licenses for 1915 and it has been found necessary to issue a circular stating that requests received on 1914 blanks will not be considered.

It is hoped that by December 1, when applications must be in, the majority applicants will be made, a large proportion of the owners in Pennsylvania will have their applications filed.

LOST THREE FINGERS

Got Head in Circular Saw at Local Furniture Factory.

Reaching back the frame near the tooth of a circular saw to remove a piece of wood, Dewey Horner had his right hand severely cut when the first two fingers cut off near the knuckles. Horner is employed at the Bosser furniture factory into Friday afternoon. Horner is eighteen years old and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Horner.

He was given preliminary treatment by Dr. H. M. Bowers and was then taken by Harry Wentz in E. P. Miller's automobile to the York hospital.

NO ARGUMENT HERE

AB Agree in their Opinion of Fads and Fashions.

Patrons and management were a unit in their opinion of the "Fads and Fashions" play at the Majestic Theatre Tuesday evening. It was one of the most amusing entertainments which ever appeared in Gettysburg. Everybody was in a happy mood and commanded. Only a small house greeted the company, and it was still present before the show was far on its way.

DAY AND NIGHT

Apple Truck Reading Twenty Four Hours Every Day.

FATALLY HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Motorcycle Bolden by Young Man Runs into Large Machine. Rider Dies from Injuries. Frequent Visitor.

Struck by the front car of the automobile coming from the opposite direction, Harry Kelser, along the Carlisle pike, in Mount Holly Springs, was thrown from the buggy and the horse was driven on by the force of the impact. Kelser was carried to the home of Mrs. Nealy Dietz, of New Oxford and was about dead when he left the buggy. He was 22 years, 2 months and two days, aged 16 and 18 years.

ISSUES WARNING

Kalbfus Says Law Requires Tag on Every Dog.

Dr. Joseph Kalbfus has issued a warning to all hunters that they must have dog licenses. Kalbfus says that he was shot hunt with receipts only will be allowed. The law, he says, is made for the greatest protection that the farmer has against dogs, especially those who may tramp down the fields and serves as a means of identification.

Dr. Kalbfus says that it is difficult. "When the bill requiring tags was before the legislature, the Humane societies, presentives of the granges in this county, the Farmers' Protective Association for Lieutenant-Governor, and many other organizations, including purvale, demanded of those pushing the measure that the law be made. The force of the bill should be the wearing of the tag. Without the tag nothing. The farming interests of this State gave this bill their endorsement because they thought it would be a protection."

Dr. Kalbfus says that it is the duty of the commission to enforce the law as required and that so far no such attention has been called to it time and again. He makes the statement by saying that he is perfectly willing to have his dog tagged by the county and believes that the farmers of this state will strenuously oppose the efforts of any persons who may attempt to the clause requiring display of the tag.

PURSE STOLEN ON BUGGY RIDE

County Woman Walking along Road is Given Help by Two Men who Later Make her Get out and Keep her Money Purse.

To be suddenly ejected from a buggy in which she had been riding, to have her baggage thrown to the ground and her purse retained, was the treatment which Mrs. Joseph Fuss, of Five Points, near York Springs, says she received one day this week on the road between there and Fort Bell Berlin. We the guilty parties are, is not stated.

According to the woman's story she had secured passage one way on the Liberal Hotel, in East Berlin, and on Monday morning was on her way to that place to take up her duties. It is a journey of several miles and, after walking some distance, she was overtaken by the two young men in a buggy who offered to take her along. Mrs. Fuss, glad for the opportunity, got into the conveyance and got into the buggy.

As they came near the home of Henry Kaiser, along the Carlisle pike, the men asked her to leave one of the packages belonging to the woman was thrown from the buggy and she was told to get out. She was then compelled to walk the remainder of the way to Berlin, it is said, and when she attempted to get it, it was refused her. She went to Berlin and when she called after them they urged their horses into a running gait and paid no heed to her pleadings.

The woman went to the Liberal Hotel and sent a telephone message to York Springs to be on the lookout for the two men. Constable Bell, of Berlin, heeded, however, and it is not known whether he attempted to head them off.

THEIR HOME BURNED

Oxford Township Residents Lose Everything in Fire.

The two story frame tenant house on the farm of Jacob Bair, in Oxford township, was totally destroyed by fire Thursday afternoon. Washington Bair, hart and family who occupied the house, lost all their household and kitchen furniture, and a dog that had been penned in the cellar perished in the flames. Fire of unknown origin is said to have started on the roof of the building and was discovered by neighbors. The fire originated in not known, but it is thought that sparks from a passing locomotive may have fallen on the roof. The loss is placed at $1,000 and there was only a hundred dollars on which there was a insurance.

The loss to the Bisehart family, while not very heavy, is considerable.

FOR YORK'S ARCHES

Lincoln Highway Association will Assist York Organization.

The York Chamber of Commerce, which some time ago took up the matter of selecting an appropriate arch or gateway to the "Gateway City" on the eastern and western extremities of the city, with the American Institute of Architects, has received a letter to the effect that the members in the Institute have decided to co-operate with the Lincoln Highway association.

The general in charge of the architectural features of the coast-to-coast highway.

A meeting of the executive committee of the institute of architects was held on Aug. 16, last at which time the president read correspondence from the Lincoln Highway association which has for its object the erection of memorial arches at important points throughout the entire length of the highway, markers, stations and many towns, which are to decide the course of the great thoroughfare.

NOTIFIES LOCAL BARS AND HOTELS

Solomon and Clabe Must Keep Account of their Stock on Hand they shall Pay State Share of the War Tax, Stamps soon.

Notices are being sent by Collector of Internal Revenue Kirkendall to all wholesalers, hotels, clubs and all other places in this county where wines or beverages are sold advising them of the provisions of the new tax law affecting the sales of these commodities.

Clubs and hotels will feel the effect of the new law the most. A tax of twenty cents is imposed on every quart bottle of domestic or imported champagne, whether sold or ordered in glass. Six cents a quart must be paid on all cordials and two cents a quart on all still wines, such as port, sherry and others of like nature.

Pending the printing of the new stamps, all consumers, local proprietors and club stewards are required to keep an accurate account of the quantity and nature of all goods and the consumers, as that report will be required by the collector when the stamps are issued.

Under the new law there is an exemption of the first one hundred cases of beer, or hereafter brewers must pay a tax of $7.00 a barrel, just double what it is for this additional revenue it is not known, but it is probable it will fall on the retailer and the consumer. It is understood that the brewers will not pass it on to the retailers, adding that much more to the profits of the trade. The brewers on the other hand, the schoolmaster's friend, will not pay a cent of the glasses, therefore schooling the tax on the consumer.

Baltimore also announces the rates in price of beer as follows: Bottled, 24 pints of beer, bottled about 75 cents per case.

CAR KILLED PIG

Auto Tourist Struck 300-Pound Porker on Road Near Hanover.

Tourists in a large 7-passenger Packard automobile, bound in the direction of Gettysburg, found themselves, however a 300-pound pig, the property of Mrs. Lewis Hoffman, of Penn Township Vista, and killed the pig outright. The owner slapped his machine and fully $50 damages was paid to Mrs. Hoffman for the animal, claiming that he was willing to pay the amount rather than greet a spead.

BIG FORREST BLAZE

Mountain Fire Now Raging Near Barnitz Station.

Fire, presumably of incendiary origin, broke out shortly before noon Thursday on the mountain side in the lands owned by Benjamin Rice near Barnitz Station, and has been burning in all directions, burning over a considerable area of valuable oil timber and threatening farms and houses in the vicinity.

The blaze originated on a section of the mountain that is a considerable distance from any house or buildings and it is believed that either some hunters or a tramp started the fire in the dry timber in valuable and the loss already amounts to a considerable sum.

FATHER FOUGHT WITH NAPOLEON

Confederate Veteran Dies at Mt. St. Mary's where he Had Taught for Forty Five Years. Life of Great Activity.

Dr. Ernest Lagarde, for 45 years professor of English literature and modern languages at Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, died Sunday after a brief illness.

Prof. Lagarde was born at New Orleans, and was of Italian-French origin, his father having served as an officer in the army of the first Napoleon. He was educated at College Hill, Mass., and at the University of Virginia. He received the degree of LL.D. from Georgetown University.

During the Civil War he served in the Confederate Army as a member of the crack Washington Artillery of New Orleans. After the war he engaged in various newspaper enterprises, editing the Whig and the Age in Richmond, Va., and subsequently was associate editor of the Magnolia, the Mercury, the Courier and the Era, all of New Orleans. Later he became professor of English literature and modern languages at Mt. St. Mary's College in 1869.

Professor Lagarde was married in 1861 to Louise Lafargue, of New Orleans, who survives his husband with three sons, Ernest, of Jamaica, Earth, of New Orleans, and John B., of Anniston, Ala., and one daughter, Miss, wife of Chevalier Ferrero.

He was a member of the Sons of the Revolution and of the United Confederate Veterans.

The funeral was held from the college church Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

LOST TO LEBANON

Gettysburg Elevens no Match for Strong Visiting Team.

The Gettysburg College foot ball team more than met their equals on Saturday when they faced the strong Lebanon Valley eleven on Nixon Field and were defeated by the score of 24 to 0. The visitors showed a superior form in every department of the game. Through the first quarter they dashed with the greatest ease and it was seldom that the ball left them for downs.

Gettysburg, on the contrary, was at weak in her offense as in the defense and only on or two well executed forward passes served as redeeming features.

Lebanon Valley scored a touchdown in the first few minutes of play by straight foot ball and forward pass. In the second period a goal from the field and a lucky scoop for a pass over Bratthum's head yielded five more points.

The second half opened with Gettysburg showing some spirit and a forward pass to Turnbull yielded six points. Hine kicked a goal from the field later but Lebanon crossed Gettysburg's goal line during the last two periods. No goal was kicked from a touchdown. While the visitors' strength was such that members from they names here and a victory seemed doubtful, it appeared to be believed that Gettysburg would put up a game for exposure to that which she displayed Saturday.

KILL SQUIRRELS OF GOVERNMENT

Little Animals Shot by the Dozen near Culp's Hill. Wonder still Battlefield Reservation in Search of Water.

The killing of a large number of squirrels from government ground has caused somewhat a great deal of interest to those in charge of the National Park and efforts are being made in some way to prevent the continuance of the killing. It is impossible by the animals leaving the property of the Park Commission in search of water

The killing continued drought took from the squirrels some of their natural fear of man and they would as they were forced to look elsewhere for their supply. In their search they would come upon the battlefield and daily went there to drink. Unfortunately, this was discovered and, when the squirrel season opened, residents went there and simply waited with gun in hand until the little grey animals appeared. This is being done away and in a short time had the effect of allowed by the end of the season.

It is said, from the Culp's Hill section alone, no less than fifty or sixty squirrels have been killed in this way, and that is a small percentage of all the game on the one side of the town.

Just how the slaughter is to be prevented is a question which the officials themselves frighten off the squirrels, but they say emphatically that the killing is not done on government ground it is merely doubtful whether the Park Commission could take legal steps, even though thes might claim ownership of the animals. But ownership over game might also be difficult to prove.

In view of the great care exercised in preserving game on the battlefield, the efforts to provide the squirrels with food all winter by the visitors cuts off their source of supply, and the killing is not done on government ground it is merely doubtful whether the Park Commission could take legal steps, even though thes might claim ownership of the animals. But ownership over game might also be difficult to prove.

ANNIVERSARY

Next Gettysburg Bible Society Reports Work of Past Year.

With reports indicating their usual prosperity, the annual meeting of the Woman's Bible Society of Gettysburg, was held in the Presbyterian church town, on Sunday evening held their sixty eighth anniversary exercises in the College Church.

Among other things the reports showed that the receipts during the year 296 had been turned over to the Bible House of Philadelphia for Bible memberships. In addition to this a large amount of money and a number of the Bible had been purchased from the annual offer and distributed in the field later but Lebanon crossed Gettysburg's goal line during the last two periods. No goal was kicked from a touchdown. While the visitors' strength was such that members from they names here and a victory seemed doubtful, it appeared to be believed that Gettysburg would put up a game for exposure to that which she displayed Saturday.

All Around The Farm

SHADE FOR THE FARMHOUSE.

Trees Are Necessary Both For Beauty and Comfort in Hot Weather.

(Prepared by United States Department of Agriculture.)

The importance of shade trees around the farmhouse is not generally appreciated by the owners of such trees nor by visitors to the farm or the city. In selecting the shade trees for the farmhouse the owners will often consult his wife or daughter, but rarely does he consult her if this is not possible, with the aspect of the house. The ideal shade tree for the farmer can stand trees which in a few years will be large enough to afford good appearance of his home. He must, however, be well developed and full before may be if it is best entirely at the start. Trees that are stunted or scrubby or foliage will not be nearly so effective.

There are, moreover, several, one-sided trees which are not desirable. Two or three elms or maples, for instance, will not afford as much shade in the temperature of the house many degrees as will a single tree of the same size. Today the greatest shade trees are the maples, the elms and the linden. Of these the maples are the most desirable. The sugar maple is a slow grower, but it is long lived and makes an excellent shade tree. The soft maple is a rapid grower, but it is short lived and brittle. The Norway maple is a handsome tree and makes a good shade tree. The silver maple is a rapid grower and a long lived tree, but it is brittle and the branches are easily broken by storms. The box elder is a rapid grower, but it is short lived, brittle and subject to many insect enemies. The elms are rapid growers and long lived trees. The white elm is the most desirable of the species. The slippery elm is a rapid grower, but it is short lived and subject to many insect enemies. The linden is a slow grower, but it is long lived and makes an excellent shade tree. The soft maple is a rapid grower, but it is short lived and brittle. A WELL SHADED FARMHOUSE.

rapid enough to afford a good shade for a number of years. If a cool, shady spot were desired, the hackberry, which is a much better all sort of trees than is, and the soft maple is much easier to keep down under foot and it is a good tree to plant if it is a part of the day at least, out of the sun.

There a purely financial point of view, the fact that the trees will add to the property invariably brings a better price when the farm is sold or otherwise disposed of. From this point of view the shade trees are a good investment, as a sound business investment and one which the property owner should not fail to exploit. Men experienced in farm work know that the greatest economy of fatigue will frequently solve a farmer's problem of how to get more production on good land and water fail to secure, and vice versa.

In building a farmhouse it is, of course, desirable to locate it where it will take advantage of what trees there may be already on the property. Where this is not possible, however, young trees should be planted as far in advance as possible whenever in most instances of the owner's lifetime. Trees will bring the quickest results in the immediate vicinity of the house. Some tried and to follow them with other and more permanent trees, such as the elm or oak. In several it can, of course, be done at the same time, the shorter in its life, and the quicker in its growth, being planted with the view of serving only as a nurse for the more permanent trees. The method is also employed in the case of orchards, where the nurse trees are planted between the permanent trees, so that the orchard will be filled with trees from the start. Where this is done the nurse trees are usually cut out when they begin to interfere with the permanent trees.

There are, however, some household odds which could be performed with

BATTLE LINES SO CLOSE THAT SOLDIERS OFTEN TALK WITH FOES

British Cook Lost His Way Between Trenches; Near-by Fed the Germans.

Little Stories of Interest From the Scene of War In Europe.

THROUGHOUT north of the war line in Belgium and France, the battles fell into two of the first men and the allied armies appear to have been about of the same numbers on each side, when not fighting in advance positions they occupied the strong defensive lines connecting these positions. Sometimes these lines are only a few hundred yards apart

In regard to this a lieutenant of an English regiment of infantry, holding the trenches, told a war correspondent out that a cook of his company had quite mistakenly dinner for his night. The regimental wagons had gone some and only joined the regiment after it ceased. When the meal was ready the cook, who had never been under fire before, took a hot dinner to the officers in the trenches. He found them in a trench. "Is this the Staff Mess?" he asked. On his becoming over the matter he addressed some officers in the trench, who told him he were a veiled hint. The cook ran out of the trench, followed by a shower of bullets. Returning to set, out with the dinner, he was met by a German officer, who, inviting a night wound on the left arm, took the dinner himself. The cook had dinner later, although not hot.

The same trenches in some places are so close that grenades can be thrown from one to the other. The ground is everywhere a valley. At this point there is a considerable space for wounds. The men on both sides assume these wounds are caused by the bullets of their opponents, with the result that the opposing trenches are often on friendly terms.

Guy's Reason Cured Prince.

One of the highest orders from on high has been given to officers of the Fifth Militia in Germany, said at Kiel recently.

When the Germans occupied Alger in 1871 the municipality of that city demanded the indemnity of 50,000 lost in the bombardment which about 25,000. These the mayor duly produced.

Then the Germans demanded 50,000 the Mayor they brought to Epernay a considerable sum of imperial money on whom an immediate operation was performed.

As an German surgeons were present there was nothing to handle the case, they proceeded as humanitarian and the Germans have since successfully performed the cases in Alger.

The Germans ordered him a "picture other and more permanent trees, such as the elm or oak. In several it can, of course, be done at the same time, the shorter in its life, and the quicker in its growth, being planted with the view of serving only as a nurse for the more permanent trees. Queer Dress at the Front.

The Hamburg Post has received a letter from a soldier at the front describing an amusing description of the dress of the Scottish troops. Many of these troops have adopted having lost their kilts.

Imagine his surprise at the sight of scores of civilian caps, soft felt hats and bowlers. Followed by a dress suit of fashion. Grouse to see, out with the kilts, and in with the trousers. Imagine a night wound on the left arm, took the dinner himself. The cook had dinner later, although not hot.

The same trenches in some places are so close that grenades can be thrown from one to the other. The ground is everywhere a valley. At this point there is a considerable space for wounds. The men on both sides assume these wounds are caused by the bullets of their opponents, with the result that the opposing trenches are often on friendly terms.

Lord ——— (all allegiance also some sacrifice) is dressed in "Hello, Tommies!"

"Hello, Jocks!" "Bonjour Pantaloons!"

How many men are there in your "Two score corps."

Then, come the bullets are up and the scene is changed. Sometimes the combined bombing parties are within a few yards of one another. Indeed one of the writer's friends was in a trench which was taken by the Germans and retaken by the British.

Kept Bible Under Fire.

To save her horses from the German army Dominick secured a tract of land in the Argonne forest, where he hoped to keep them safe. Unfortunately both of the opposing armies to make their headquarters in the village of Binarville, which was destroyed by the shells. Dominick's house was also shelled and burned to the ground. One hundred price beef cattle object of the Germans' solicitude, and in spite of being taken to the slaughter house by the German soldiers, escaped from the city, where they are forbidden in much beside and making their way through the ruins are now there.

Henry Bolling in Binarville has brought out in wild alarm all the hounds and hinds of the district. He has just returned from battlefields has made the journey on foot, and has been under the rifles after a battle into camp.

Refuses Money From Belgium.

That the British admiralty is fully alive to the importance of providing income for the crews of warships that are kept at sea for long periods is unwritten in genuine drowning, those who have ships are not allowed to go to their assistance, is shown by the announcement that the admiralty is arranging for a general supply of newspapers and periodicals to the officers and men of the fleet.

The men are allowed to carry the cost of which they are awake, and the total will be about $1,000 a month for each individual when on is lodged.

LONDON AWAITS AERIAL INVASION

Takes Precautions to Repel Attack by Zeppelins.

GERMANS READY FEBRUARY.

Will Not Wait Four Months' Time For Preparation of Machines Which "Wait and See." Says Inventor—Zeppelin Rear-Admiral Is Being Lionized, President in British Capital.

Information received in Amsterdam from an authoritative source regarding Germany's aerial plans throws a new light on the action of the London authorities in doing away with all left over Trafalgar Square, the statue of Nelson, which many searchlights and machine guns at the roofs of buildings and surrounding. These precautions are thoroughly justified, though a bit premature, says the New York Times correspondent in London.

While according to all reports made on London August 1 Germany is not ready for a raid on the British capital until the middle of February, it will undoubtedly be made at the earliest possible moment after the outbreak of hostilities.

"We are building 300 new ships as quickly as the artisans can turn them out. Three are of a new and entire large type. Our factories are working day and night. The number of engineers in addition to the workmen of the docks and factories is unlimited," the correspondent was informed.

Count Zeppelin himself will be in commission before February. The ill luck which pursued the inventor in earlier ranges, and at least one of the machines destroyed, has not recurred in this series.

Zeppelins Need Equipment.

An American refugee from Hamburg reached his end on board the steamer Amerika, Germany and Holland on the subject of Zeppelins at the time that at the firing field in Berlin he had seen a number of Zeppelins and fifty Zeppelins in their sheds.

The American declared he understood that all of these ships were to be used in the movement of German land fifty Zeppelins six weeks ago he replied "Possibly."

"Wait and see. Only give us time. Wait and see.

"Zeppelin sack" is the form of mistake operation of a Zeppelin airship, he in one report.

"Wait and see" popular term for still necks, which are commoner than ever for this season, and the sales of these decorations are reading their necks, was heard in the shops of Regent street, nearthlights recklessly examine the sky for signs of Zeppelins.

WATCH ERINDILLA CASE.

Washington and London Deeply Interested in Events of Oil Stop.

If the supreme court upholds the oil tank stop formerly the Washington, the British government will interest to the next overseerlie, but elegant cadets. Should the court decide otherwise, this, it will be appealing to a principle of international law which the United States never formally ratified. There was precedent for such a course in when both Russia and the United States in the Russo-Japanese war proclamation of Paris, though neither had ratified it. Both countries observed its stipulations in Washington and London.

The Erindilla case is a ship of the Deutsch-Amerika Petroleum company, which was seized by the British. She was bought by the Standard Oil company after the outbreak of hostilities and sent oil under the American flag. Outside the three mile limit she was taken and towed to Halifax and the Admiralty Court.

The declaration of London, ratified by all the powers except the United States, provided that a vessel on an enemy's ship by a vessel in war vessel. The United States refused to ratify the declaration of London because it which any enemy's vessel, with the exception of ships of war, is liable to capture. The principle of prize of good faith in put upon the high seas by the declaration of London.

The British continues, December, 1911, passed a naval prize act seven to ratify the declaration of London. The tents rejected it. Yet it has become in usage into the common law of nations, was embodied in declarations by Italy and Japan during their wars with Turkey and Russia and was admitted in principle by the present belligerents. If an appeal is taken from the prize court to the House of Lords sitting as a court of last resort, the decision will be rendered in accordance with international law, or, if there is no precedent, on the basis of "the general principles of justice and equity."

CHORUSES FOR THE BIG SHOW

Many Young People of Town to Take Part in the Musical Success which will be Given here Next Week. Pratices Daily.

Mr. Kellogg is a perfect nutcl over the various lively groups of young people and they all enjoy the pretious without wasting any time.

Mr. Kellogg, in his college days, managed a musical club for three years, as well as taking leading roles. For several years he was dramatic critic for two New York newspapers, until he attached himself to Mr. Rogers' staff. Mr. Rogers is delighted with the enthusiasm shown by our townspeople.

GET THROUGH CAR

Will Help out Local Express Men in their Work.

So great has the volume of express business become that it has been found necessary to put on a through car to carry the extra load from Philadelphia and Hagerstown, through Gettysburg. Beginning Monday the leading train arrives here at 8:45 and in the morning brought a through car which goes out with the 9:00 for Western Maryland. In the afternoon it returns at 3:04 and goes through Maryland and goes out at four o'clock on the Reading. All trains, particularly the morning and night express trains, carry an enormous volume of express and the work of transferring here is a great task. The through car service will relieve to day from their hardest work but the night force will continue to have their hands full.

CUT REPTILE IN TWO

Snake's Head was Raised in Stitzer Young Woman.

Mrs. William Ripple, Highfield, came near being bitten by a copper head snake last week. Mrs. Ripple was in the orchard assisting her husband to pick apples when she only a few feet from the reptile when she espied it. The snake had its head raised to strike when discovered. Mrs. Ripple went to his wife's assistance and cut the reptile in two with a hoe. It was over three feet in length and one of the largest seen in the neighborhood for some time.

Twenty five Wilson College girls visited the battlefield Mon. The trip from Chambersburg was made in a large auto bus. Dinner was taken at the Eagle Hotel.

Novel Chair Strike.

A curious chair strike has occurred at Ochsen, in Thuringia, Germany. By an old custom the town supplied the 8 choir with 480 bottles of beer every year. The archbishop has now died and the choir impulsively went on strike. The archbishop's successor, however, will not be consecrated. The town clerk and the church authorities, and as a result it was decided to give the choir 60 000 bottles of beer.

The Drum Song

Corporal, what will you have today—
The Colonel wants it for his party—
Corporal, what will you have today—
Before the battle and the fight?
Rub-a-dub-dub, we are ready, sir,
With a style and a roll
To give you the best of the merry fight
To the rum dum of the living sod.

Corporal, what will you have today
For the time that the army drums shall play
Corporal, what will you have today—
Before the battle and the fight?
With a drub at every beat,
With a roll and a style
Rub-a-dub-dub,
Of a hundred bites and sweet!

Corporal, what will you have today
The slow retreat or the charge to kill
Corporal, what will you have today—
Before the battle and the fight?
What shall the song of the war drum be?
Shall it be sad or shall it be gay?
Corporal, what will you have today
And never to march in the time again
Before the battle and the fight?

Corporal, sunrise is fresh and true
Before the battle and the fight!
Corporal, death, and yours and mine,
Before the battle and the fight!
Corporal, a requiem for the executed!
And one for the sailor, too,
Before the battle and the fight!
Good night, dear air, good night!

Good night, dear air, their eyes be shut
And all, for the hearts that are broken
Good night, dear air, good night!
And the drums that sing out of very joy
Before the battle and the fight!
Corporal, what will you have today
The funeral march or the drums quick
Of the end of the revolution.

THIS WINTER'S FASHIONS WON'T SHOW SO MUCH.

Style Decrees in Person Seem to Hold Out Ways of Dressing.

Woman's form is again to become a thing of beauty.

Fashion has decreed that to be fash ionable one must be slender.

Silhouette, gown and flimsy petticoat are the words which the fashion interpreters of the current observer, are in be cast into the discard. The new silhouette is to be neat—cotton and three or four yards around the bottom of the skirt. Material and accented tendencies this we will be told presently.

"To be in vogue this winter there will be no room for any one who has a decided flare at the hem, and if the skirt is to be full it must be gathered and accentuated at sides and dartmoor of front and back."

FILM TO TEACH SAFETY.

Railroad Systems Employ Moving Picture to Show Dangers.

Moving pictures are being used to teach safety to employes of the Pennsylvania and New York Central lines, in a motion picture film prepared under the direction of Mr. Slow.

The film has been written and produced for the New York Central lines by Mr. Slow, and is being shown to employes in this with the safety work being carried on by the railroad company. It is the intention to employ it not to be used as a safety system, according to all well informed persons.

The pictures will also be used in connection with the safety first campaign which is being carried on by the railroads along the line for the benefit of the general public. The film is known as the Safe Fe. Fortifying and lack every month the safety first campaign will use this film.

The film is the first attempt of any railroad to use a motion picture for safety work. The pictures will show the principal parts played by professional actors and actresses in connection with safety work.

GET GOOD HAUL IN SMALL OFFICE

Post Office on Way from Gettysburg to Harrisburg Entered. Safe Blown and Cash and Stamps worth Several Hundred Removed.

Yeggmen early in the morning broke into the safe of P. S. Wingert, at Grantham, which is also the postoffice, in Grantham on the railroad, and got over $200 in money and stamps. Grantham is located on the Reading railroad between Gettysburg and Harrisburg.

Information has been sent to the State police headquarters and it was thought that the robbers would probably begin the work of trailing the man. A meager description is at hand, it is said, and with these, efforts will be made to locate the men.

Residents of the town heard a muffled report. A train was passing at the time and no one thought anything and this partially concealed the noise of the explosion. It is likely, who lives near, said he heard a team drive away from the postoffice after the explosion had occurred but at the time paid no attention as he believed it was only persons leaving town. As a party which had been held that night.

Entrance had been made by breaking a rear window of the store and unlatching the window.

After entering, the man had gone to the safe, located in the rear of the store, and after muffling it with blankets and coats, which were in the store, had exploded a big charge of what is believed to have been dynamite. When discovered the safe was found to be open and the money and stamps taken. The safe was not damaged to any great extent which was easily pried open.

The interior compartments had been broken open and the money, stamps and a barometer which were left in the safe, were taken. The loss is about $50 in money with all of the stamps taken. The loss is estimated to about $150. In addition to what is known of the amount in the store, articles being broken by the explosion and the broken glass window in front being shattered.

CROPS AND THE WEATHER.

Importance of Agricultural Meteorology Is Shown by Experts.

The practical side of agricultural meteorology is the study of the relationships adjustment possible between the crops and the weather, says Bulletin. The crop in this process is to obtain so much heat, light and water from the sun in the world. The meteorological factors of the most importance to agriculture were created in 1887, there were 1,000 stations in the United States, and the number has increased to 4,000. From the beginning the bureau has issued warnings of storms, frosts and the surveying, most of which study the relations of weather to the growing crops, a certain number are compensated for their services by the bureau. They are devoted to the actual in the bureau.

Each of the agriculturist stations consists of a study of the effect of heat on a certain sequence of crops is grown year after year, and the variations in the established system of rotation, under conditions of crop failure and partial failure as possible. The only variable factor in the system is the weather, peculiarity to the places under observation. The weather bureau has been organized for measuring the intellectual meteorological elements. Its observers have the great stress given getting these measurements with the greatest degree of accuracy possible.

The guiding principle of Bronson's work is that the study of the weather does not depend upon its receiving a direct practical value from the standpoint of life, industries and the like through the whole science is not to be applied to certain seasons at certain times. In the study of meteorology as a science it also distinguishes definite epochs—as the discovery of the law of storms, or the cause or a deficiency of a certain meteorological element, as rain.

Thus it is found that the yield of all grains decided to the north and west. The real east of Europeans Russia depends on a normal shape upon the rainfall of the previous late summer and early autumn more than upon any other. A rainfall record alone, to predict yields months in advance.

The principal practical applications of meteorology to agriculture are the forecasting of weather conditions likely to the local climate; second, to furnish data for the study of climatic conditions to enhance the economy of crop production; then giving practical warning to the workers. Harrisburg Motor Club will Come through here on Secondary Tour and Economy Test Next Month. A One Day's Run

From Harrisburg to Gettysburg and from here to New York is the objective point of the Harrisburg Motor Club, which has been arranged for by September 15 by the Motor Club of Harrisburg, for Thanksgiving Day.

Practically all of the leading dealers in the city have signified intentions of entering cars in the contest which will be run through world pot makes it a successful event. The Harrisburg Motor Club has agreed to contribute a cup as a trophy for the winners and other prizes may be arranged for shortly. Care and passengers will be weighed, thus keeping the decision on the number of miles per gallon weight of car and load.

It is the intention of the committee to check out all cars at 7 o'clock in the morning at the Motor Club and the good Thanksgiving dinner at their respective homes in Harrisburg. No specific time for lo schem will be made by the Motor Club, but people are where and when desired.

The route is generally enjoyable affairs, as well as of value in determining the economy and still in operating motor cars.

URGE CHRISTMAS PEACE.

Ministers Want Powers to Declare Armistice on Christ's Birthday.

The Daily Mail this morning received a dispatch from its correspondent in Nova Scotia, stating that prominent citizens and ministers there have under the auspices of the Halifax Peace Society, have begun an agitation to have an armistice on Christmas day.

The correspondent said of the movement:

"This idea is in its infancy, but a large number of the leading members of each distinguished leaders as Cardinal Bourne, Archbishop of Canada and the Episcopal diocese of New York and Nova Scotia, have expressed their hearty sympathy.

"The present movement looking to a Christmas armistice originated at a recent attendance presented generally to the Halifax Peace Society, which has been in existence for many years.

Bishop Greer said details of the plan were still to be worked out, but the movement had the sympathy and with the expected support of all churches. He believed the observance of Christmas as a holiday would be much more widespread than ever before if the movement succeeded.

Bishop Greer said that the more remarkable in that the idea should have been born in Nova Scotia.

HOW TO KILL WILD MUSTARD

A Nuisance to Lawns and Crops of Actual Lass.

(Prepared by United States department of agriculture.)

The wild mustard, with only a suitcase in lawns, is here it is offensive both to the eye and nose, but it is the cause of actual loss to farmers in a large part of the country east of Missouri and north of Colorado. If cows eat although they do not like the taste and odor of their milk is most disagreeable. Hens lay eggs that have an unpleasant taste. Wheat and other grains are sometimes ruined in value by the presence of mustard seeds. In the case of barley infested with mustard it is the bitterness of the seeds that spoils the value. The United States department of agriculture therefore advises farmers not to spare time or trouble in eradicating the pest.

In June or July, when the wild mustard is fully mature, the stem is from one and a half to three and a half inches tall. On the top there is a cluster of from two to six aerial buds which open into bright yellow flowers. The white silve and smaller ones with the flowers. Below the flowers the leaf and stem die these bulbs begin to form. The seeds are extraordinarily small in the summer or early fall, while the leaves of the land dandelion bulbs does not begin until much later. It is this seralogical white season that the eradication of the weed so difficult.

To kill the wild onion the work should be started in the fall to destroy the plants that have already formed and before they produce new bulbs. The best time to treat the onion patches is from to fifteen inches high, or during October and November and the middle of April and May. Cultivation with a spring tooth harrow is recommended, and one plow with a jointer attached to the beam often be a great help. Disking the land produces is plowing will also aid in destroying the weed. Following sowing the field should be planted in a cultivated crop, and the check rows being best. Another shallow cultivation should be given in the spring, but extensively a disking or two previous to planting will destroy the cultivating the corn the effort should be to kill the weeds before they appear, up, and the easiest way to do this is to keep the soil stirred.

From the time the farmer begins to plow in the spring until the corn is laid by he should be on the lookout for the first young weeds to appear. Then he should be prepared to follow the same plan of keep growing the crop clean, accompanied by a carefully cultivated crop the early spring. The best method of preventing almost sure death to all the wild onions is to keep the land under the cultivation, but with but little earth later and shallow. Deep cultivation is necessary to kill the wild onion, as the plants are tough and readily destroyed by tall plowing. Where the land is not plowed in the fall cultivated seed bed formed it to be plowed in the spring.

In cases where the onion pest is a serious one and the land is not needed if the land is not plowed until late in the fall. The land should be plowed again only a few onion plants will ripen their bulbers by harvest time the following year. By delaying the plowing, however, it frequently be possible to get the best results from the fall work, provided, of course, that may be preferable to plant spring crops. The most important feature of the entire boll fall grubbing may be to kill the young onion plants. Deep cultivation late planting has the same harmful effect upon the field.

FULL GALLONS OF COAL OIL

Town and County Merchants Found to be Giving Short Measure but Scaler Fines their Pumps and Purchaser will Benefit.

When you light your coal oil stove to take away the chill of an early fall evening, or when you light your kerosene lamp, you can now be sure that the merchant gives you a full gallon of oil and that your are burning the proper amount of oil to get the value for your money. Six months ago this was something you could not have had that satisfaction.

In the months the stores in the towns and townships of Adams county, Sealer of Weights and Measures Raffensperger has found almost no coal oil pumps whose full measure was given. In almost every instance people got considerably less than a gallon of oil bought, in justice to the store-keepers, it must be said that the majority of them did not know of their short measures.

In the stores now principally in those stores where coal oil is measured by a pump. But occasionally oil being told through the revolving barrels. The adjustment comes up nearly every one of these pumps was incorrect and as much as a pint shortage on a gallon of oil was found. Frequently the merchant declared that he had been cheated when he got from the time he bought the pump until the time he sold it. But Mr. Raffensperger was able to make the necessary changes so that the customer gets the full gallon.

It remained for Adams County's sealer to get the scales of some Hanover merchants. The pumps were but no such official has been appointed for York County. Mr. Raffensperger found nearly every pump, now sealer in the stores of Mc-Sherrystown, and while there, tested the pumps of the merchants there and just dealers visiting the Adams County fair. In every instance the scales were off in weight and they were condemned. Before the sealer was in Adams County also had their pumps tested and found that they were two pounds short on material of from four to five pounds.

Mr. Raffensperger found nearly good, new scales in the stores of Mc-Sherrystown, but in every case the merchants about calling beans by the wrong name. Sometimes it is not purposed, and also about giving less weight than is called for in the potatoes. He has pretty nearly made the rounds of the county and in Bottstown and Fairfield alone recently found that there were in the two places in Littlestown and one in Gettysburg that were not correct.

The Sealer has been on duty almost continuously since May 8th last, the work pertaining to the office.

Portraits on Bracelets.

Bracelets have often been made use of for the exhibition of portraits. They are among the hardest of stones, and are also among the most beautiful to believe. The Roman Emperor Hadrian and his illustrious successor Antonius rewarded, as well as many other of their subjects, with bracelets, and perhaps many have seen advertised in the daily papers of this city and for in said to be a faithful copy of the original and so a morsel of very ancient date.

English Table Delicacy.

The English man's weakness for pudding is well known, and in the days of the great London Fire began at 10 o'clock in the morning and lasted for three days, the chief sufferers were the wax trefle tormerly of the pudding shops, who were driven the pudding shops, who were driven the pudding shops, who were driven to Henry VIII's time, when they were sold in the shops and cooks, now a celebrated specialty of Yorkshire, and are made of batter filled with plums and candied peel, and are boiled in a cloth for two hours, after which it is brushed over with egg and baked hard.

The Happy Home.

Don't let dishes lie in the sink for an hour. Don't shut your house and the windows and doors tightly and let the sun and air have a chance. Don't let the hearts lest a hearty laugh shake down the cobwebs of your mind and heart. Don't if you want to ruin your children, let them have a room of their own and their enjoyment must be left as the threshing floor, the barn and the stable are for the animals.

Our Shadows.

Everyone of us has a shadow. There hangs above us a sort of personality, every day and every hour, which—while we call the personal individuality which had its effect upon other life on which it falls. It goes with us wherever we go, and is something we can have when we will, but it is there, and we cannot escape it. Only that, always opens out from our feet, and is always the same. Everything from a tree, like perform from a tree, like.

SAVES HER BARN FROM INCENDIARY

Widow who Lost Three Story Building Last Winter as Result of Fireboy, Narrowly Escapes Another Loss. Found in Time.

Evidently the object of spite on the part of an unknown enemy, Mrs. Mary L. Watford, of Fox, Ind., is suffering as the result of several attempts to burn her property.

Last winter her three story residence and storehouse and thirty rooms, was burned to the ground, the fire originating on the second story of the structure at the hour of night. Then this fire was plainly incendiary, as Mrs. Watford and her son, the only inmates of the house, occupied apartments on the first floor and the upper floors were unoccupied. No clues, however, came to light. Mrs. Watford rebuilt and since the first of August has been occupying the new cottage on the site of the old one.

On Friday night her enemy was armed again and at the old conspiracy to destroy her property. During her absence her stable was fired and but for the mere accident of her arriving home soon after the blaze started her barn would have been in ashes with much load of horses, a lot of chickens, a valuable horse dog, a new fullfledged buggy, a lot of hay, feed, the car and corn and an equipment of gears, harness and farm implements.

Mrs. Watford and her son arrived home about 8:30. As she and son reached the top of the hill at the Pat. Mc-Mar road on which her cottage stands, they espied a bright glow in the hugge shed attached to the barn. They hastened to the scene and found a very vigorous blaze lapping up the front door and sides. They hastily procured buckets and by heroic efforts succeeded in quenching the flames, it was announced today, but not in sufficient time minutes the whole barn would have been a roaring furnace of flame.

On closer examination they found that a pile of straw had been placed in front of the door on the inside and had been scattered with oil.

Mrs. Watford has a very well grounded suspicion as to the guilty parties and believes they are the same scoundrels who robbed her chicken house on a number of occasions in recent years. She is making a quiet investigation and feels hopeful of being able to run down the guilty parties.

How a Cuzzle's Daughter Became a Marchioness

By EDITH V. ROSS

One day when the Marquis of Daly Dairness was hustling, and about to retire he is held from within a girl who was crying his name. Disconcerting, he went toward the door and knocked for her. She told him that she would be happy if he would let her in and talk to her for a good. The marquis said that he would gladly do so if she would let him. At this the girl made a grimace, took the key out of the door and let him in. "It's me, Sir Daly," she explained to him, "and I'm not going to make a scene, but I'm going to tell you that I'm not going to leave you." Through the girl was lost a ruin ivy jewels, her hands were beautifully formed, and while the marquis was thinking he looked up into her two pretty eyes and drank of the soul he called them as well as of the water with his hand. He knew, in fact and deed, that no one can be held in such a cup, certainly not the daughter of the Duke of Kent, and tried frustrated. So the marquis, who was a gentleman, took her in his arms and kissed her. Then they could be locked into the girl's eyes and they kissed each other.

When he was ashamed to drink as he was, he left the girl and went away with drew, mounted his horse and rode off. Then, as he was about to depart, with till he reached the crest of a rise he looked back and saw that the girl was here a kiss from the tips of his fingers, which he returned from the other side of the docility and was lost to sight.

The marquis was a man of marquis caste not refrain from thinking of the man, but he was a gentleman and a marquis of the marquis. But it was a long time before he saw her again.

There was war between landlord and tenant, the latter of all of Ireland, and this is no exception. A landlord riding in a coach was stopped by a crowd of rioting an unknown visitor was found to be the marquis of Dalyrnple in disguise. At the height of the trouble the girl who had captured his heart appeared on the scene, and evening after evening when he was at home he would see her. He was in love with her, and thought of it in front of him. On account of the friendship between the two families and, drawing a pistol from his bosom, he said: "Sir, I demand satisfaction for this insult."

"Don't shoot," cries a woman's voice, and there in a low tone "I'm here to protect you."

"Who are you?" asked the marquis.

"I am the girl you kissed in the arbor two weeks for you to drink from. You've not any time to lose. Let me have the pistol and go into your place by the same path."

"Why should I do that?"

"Why you should wish for you to kill you."

The marquis made no reply to this for a few minutes. He was thinking. Finally he said:

"I'll not kill you. Why should I be more than a fool?"

"Because you'll see no enemy when you go there."

The girl by this time was standing on the ground and the marquis, having dismounted, then turned his horse loose. He knew that the animal would go home straight, it rode safely in through his own gate. The girl was ready to be saved a shriek. Turning, he rode back to the house, and as he did so there was no one nothing distinctly, but as he came to the house a man, who he supposed to escape from the road on the other side of the house. The moonlight of a dark substance lying in the path. He dismounted.

Who is it?" he asked.

It was a man.

He did not know the name, but he knew the face. It was that of a man who had been at the house during the day, even before served his life by saving the girl. He had come to the house and told the penalty for doing so.

The girl, who had run to the house, had her in this house by the bet- ter, and the marquis, through the night and into his house. There he told day by throwing the corpse into a pond of trespassing. Sponsaller alleged that the boys killed several of his turkeys.

TO NEED BIBLES IN OTHER LANDS

Gettysburg Society at its Annual Business Meeting on Monday Heard of Coming Demand for Bibles in War Stricken Countries.

That the American Bible Society, of which the Woman's Bible Society of Gettysburg is a part, will need a substantial increase in revenue in order to meet the demands for Bibles, on account of the war, was the report made at the annual afternoon and the business meeting of the local organization.

In Bibles, as in nearly everything else, the production in the countries of Europe has been so materially diminished on account of the war, and it will be necessary for the United States to contribute most liberally in order that the work of the general organization may not be hampered for years. A letter from the head of the Society, outlining this condition, was read to the Gettysburg Bible Society at its meeting Monday and efforts will be made to secure even more liberal contributions than usual.

Some of the collectors for the work this year were appointed at Tuesday's meeting: Miss Laura Spengler, Miss Ella Bushey, Miss Ella Hamilton, Mrs. E. M. Weil, Mrs. John M. Bloh-Mrs. Anna Kuhn, Mrs. Jacob Bankhour, Miss Esther Crouse and Miss Cora Topper. Others will be added later on.

The following officers were re-elected: president, Mrs. Helen Keith; secretary, Miss Julia Gilbert treasurer, Miss Ella McAllister; librarian, Miss Anna Rech.

PLAN TO REOPEN STOCK EXCHANGES

British and American Financiers Seek Method.

THEY WANT US TO PAY GOLD

Balance Against United States in Favor of Europe Exceeds $200,000,000 — We Have Metal in Limitless Quantities—Bankers Will Suggest Difficulty in Way of Doing So.

In view of business conditions in the United States American bankers now warn with interest that the British government's move to have the London Stock Exchange reopened as soon as possible in view to that connection have made a number of conferences in Washington with Sir George Paish and Basil H. Blackett, the representatives of the British chancellor of the exchequer now in Washington, with the idea that the discussion may lead to the resumption of the opening of American exchanges.

From what was said in well informed quarters the impression was obtained that the British government is not up with a view to an arrangement for the synchronous opening of the London and New York Stock Exchanges with the Bank of England and the American Cotton Exchanges. The British chancellor of exchequer of both sides of the Atlantic are responsible for the present war time financial conditions and that this will be taken into account in regard to any such move.

Conferences over the international financial and business situation are held between the two British financial officials, Secretary McAdoo, Secretary McAdoo and the members of the federal reserve board. Considerable progress succeeded in making clear the position of the United States and the attitude toward the efforts of the United States government to establish a new and definite arrangement for the settlement of the balances against the United States.

Britons Want Us to Pay.

Generally outlined, the British and French view is that the balance of trade stood in the United States treasury in gold and that the government was in an admirable condition to pay what they owe in that metal and that they can pay in gold as the obligations become due. Secretary McAdoo is opposed to exploiting to the British representatives the limitless quantities of gold in the possession of this great quantity of gold in the United States government meets that would come to the United States if the war were halted on or before this time.

The $1,000,000,000 of gold in the United States treasury and the $500,000,000 more in the banks of this country, it is pointed out, would be more than sufficient wily there should be any difficulty in the way of the United States paying the balances against it in the form of gold. The balance against the United States in favor of the British empire during the year is estimated at $200,000,000, the total being the excess of the United States trade with the British government and financiers find that there is at hand, these obligations can be met in gold without any difficulty as distrust to finance in this country.

Objections to the British Plan.

The objections to the British government's plan expressed with the statement that while the United States has the money gold it reserve there are difficulties which it is said will delay the resumption of gold in the entire balance in the world.

The statement has been made that Sir George and Mr. Blackett that the British have in the treasury at available for this use that it is stated that the American gold certificates which are in circulation and that the only way which it could be used would be to acquire a sufficient number of the certificates. Furthermore, the New York banks upon which London draws in exchange, have no gold in excess of the reserve already having been depleted by the recent exchange extent.

According to the American authorities, it was taken that the United States in order to settle the present balances with England in gold would be obliged to resort to the sense of the entire gold reserve of the present raising of the $1,500,000,000 for the redemption of the outstanding notes.

There would have to be a voluntary subscription by the banks of the country, and Washington officials expect considerable difficulty in any scheme that would be made to raise $500,000,000 in gold for shipment to London.

Biggest Gun For Our Navy.

With the utmost secrecy the navy department, the New York American learns, has completed a powerful six inch gun and is now ready to put it in the largest and most destructive naval engine of war. Inquiry at the navy department in Washington confirmed the existence of a new type, and in the navy, "Mr. Secretary does not wish anything said about the new construction."

GRAND COLLEGE BOYS' BIG TIME

Have Genuine Enjoyment during their Stay in Gettysburg, March through Streets. Play Mock Foot Ball Game. Other Fun.

Those sixty Grand College boys had the time of their young lives in everything but Friday evening when, relieved of their strict discipline at the Philadelphia school, they were allowed to enjoy themselves in the city.

First in their program of amusement was the securing of the ever present jolly pop, and armed only with those, they marched around the public square, to the cyclorama building where they viewed the great battle picture with genuine delight. Returning to town they found an hour's rest at a local moving picture house and then did further marching, forming in a column and parading over the various streets.

Centre Square was their main area of activity and here they lined up for a mock foot ball game. The Eagle Hotel was merry with the laughter of the youngsters during the two hours of the night but their discipline soon told and there was no "rough house", as one of them remarked.

On Sat. morning they returned to Philadelphia. Grand College has an enrollment of about 1,500. Not a minute or clergyman is permitted at the school, their only instructors being religious lines being in the form of lectures by men of profession.

Feathered Visitors to Penna.

Pennsylvania this year has more and more winter visitors from the north than ever before. Besides the familiar varieties as sparrows, tree sparrows, juncos, white throated sparrows, warblers and numerous others, the conifers. It commanded many bird birds are voices in the frost season, and sing a few days longer than usual. Professor H. Perrine of New York, ornithologist, who is a close observer of the coal and means of the brave, praised the Pennsylvania birds for their fine, cheerful voices and especially for having driven away the English sparrow, the most unsavory combination, which was destroying native birds.

Two of the three measures on the state tax referendum program were defeated in the state election. The one to exempt household goods still owned by the state was defeated by a majority of the Sherman anti-trust act. The third bond issue was defeated by a heavy vote and bond bill passed the house, but the senate killed the measure in the senate and all over the country. The senate killed the measure and the house was divided into so many factions as it had been impossible for the legislature to do much without any consideration on the floor of the house.

Trade Commission Bill.

The federal trade commission bill, which has been in conference between the senate and house for several weeks, may now duties to a new commission which will be named in December. The new commission will be named in December and will be in operation early in the new year. Joseph E. Davies of Wisconsin is slated to be head of the bureau of corporations, in all probability will be the choice of the new commission. This was indicated recently when Mr. Davies resigned his place as assistant counsellorcan from Wisconsin and the the recent conference on the trade commission bill.

The new commission will receive reports from all corporations other than those engaged in interstate carriage by rail, oil or mine. On direction from the president or congress it will investigate the affairs of corporations and will also investigate corporate activities. It will publish publicity reports and decisions in formulating, and carrying out the provisions of the act.

The Clayton bill suppresses the practices of the trusts and declares trade is made unlawful where they may substantially lessen competition. Labor unions are declared lawful and labor is not a commodity or article of commerce." The law forbids holding corporations from acquiring the stock of competing corporations, and forbids competing directorates among large corporations. It also forbids unjustified, surplus and undivided profits of more than 100 per cent of capital stock.

The law strikes at some relieved conditions. It forbids the issuance of injunction of trade belonging to a concern, except to prevent irreparable injury to the property of persons not in strike district.

Fight Over Banking Act.

The most important enactment of the present congress is the federal reserve division of the long struggle over the currency question. The act is based on the legislative programs, which the democratic party has put forward in the campaigns of 1912 and 1914. It is in the nature of a compromise between the democratic and republican views of the matter, but in the final analysis it is largely democratic. The measure, which is now the law of the land, provides for a currency system that invites regulation of the use of money by the government and of so many regional reserve banks as may be necessary to meet the reserve board in Washington.

These banks by law are what is expected to prove cheaper money by rediscounting commercial paper. They will perform some of the functions of the present national banks, operating, however, under the guidance of the federal reserve board. The act also provides for a state system banking machinery for the purpose of bringing all banks of the country to say section where money is needed. A provision in the act that may prove important to the United States during the European war is the enlarging its export trade, particularly with South America, permits national banks of large capitalization to establish branches in foreign countries.

President Wilson and the democratic party have made good their promise to carry law on currency reform, and have put into effect constructive legislation that has been unprecedented by

PANTHER AND BEAR.

A Vicious Battle in the Death With a Bear in Pennsylvania.

"When my grandfather was a young man," said Mr. Jones, "he was driving across a wilds in the Antietam Mountains. He had a load of hay on the wagon, and in the fall of 1850 he decided to go to Hagerstown to visit his sister and brother and boss. One day his brother and he were driving down one of the mountains when some panthers lived, and they decided it would be a good chance to try to get one. So one morning a bear and his cubs came down to drink the cave. When he came in sight of it he said, 'Now, boys, for the final shoot.'

He finally came to a path there seemed to be a lot of different tracks, and finally discovered a big bear and cubs. He decided to rest, following, he hoped, the bear to her lair. The bear ran into up ready when he saw the bear coming out of the cave. The old bear lay down on the ground, and the cubs ran to her. She was ready for him. The cubs ran to the cave, called a few times and then the bear came out growling and ran at him like a panther, killed it and got to the cave. He fired a shot at the three times, and every one she killed and went into the cave. He thought he would answer away off in the woods, and each time he fired.

"After she had killed them all she ventured out to see what was the matter. Then she began digging a hole in the ground. He thought she was going to bury the cubs, but instead in a few minutes the old panther arose in the hole and began to fight. Then they were angry

MRS. YOUNG IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Stark in Gettysburg Past Office for Fourteen Years Dies after Long Illness in a Pittsburgh Hospital Funeral here.

Mrs. Annie K. Young, widow of the late George F. Young, of this place, died on Thursday evening at the Shadyside Hospital, Pittsburgh, after an illness of many months from cancer of the throat. Mrs. Young was a resident of Gettysburg until a few years ago, when she moved to Pittsburgh.

She was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Stambaugh, for a number of years conducted a confectionery store on Chambersburg street in the building now occupied by M. S. Tobe. As a clerk in her father's store, at one time one of the best patronized business places in the town, Mrs. Young made a wide circle of acquaintances but she was best known through her connection with the local post office.

Mrs. Young became postmaster in 1860 and soon afterward she took up the duties of stamp clerk in the office. This position she held for fourteen years, resigning in 1914, during that time made hosts of friends, through her uniform courtesy and kindness to the patrons of the office. Not long after severing her connection at the post office she removed to Pittsburgh. Her husband died in October 1907 and she made no return visits.

The funeral will be held in Gettysburg on Saturday morning. The body will be taken to Evergreen Cemetery immediately after the arrival of the Reading train at 9.15. Rev. J. B. Baker, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran church will conduct the services at the cemetery.

MRS. WILLIAM SHAMBAUGH

Mrs. William C. Shambaugh, formerly of York Springs, died suddenly at her home in Carlisle Wednesday evening, aged 44 years.

She leaves her father Hiram Albert, of York Springs; her husband, and three children, Ruth, Martha and Jacob, all at home. She also leaves two sisters, Mrs. William Rogers, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. John Smith, of Gettysburg, and two in Carlisle. Interment at Cherbtown.

MRS. ELLEN N. REINON

Mrs. Ellen Nelson Reinon, widow of Mrs. Robert Ferry, of Hanoverburg, died in Dillsburg on Tuesday after a lingering illness, aged 74 years.

The funeral service was held in Dillsburg Thursday and interment was made at Taneytown.

MRS. LYDIA STOCKSLAGER

As the result of a fall in her home a week or more ago, Mrs. Lydia Stockslager died Sunday evening at the home of D. Calvin Rodkill, Two Taverns, aged 78 years.

Mrs. Stockslager had for some time been making her home with her only child, Mrs. Rodkill, and one day recently tripped over the upturned edge of a piece of oil cloth. She fell heavily to the floor and examination showed that one of her hips had been broken. She was given every care but the shock and other complications caused her death on Sunday.

Mrs. Stockslager was the widow of Joseph Stockslager, who died in 1895. She leaves the daughter with whom she lived and one brother, Jacob Hoover, residing near Gettysburg

The funeral was held on Wednesday morning with services at the Rodkill home at ten o'clock. Interment at St. Mark's Reformed church on the Baltimore pike.

MRS. EZRA McCAUGHLIN

Mrs Ezra McCaughlin died at 7.30 Wednesday morning at her home in McKnightstown, from Bright's disease, aged 71 years, 2 months and 28 days.

She leaves her husband and three children, Mrs. Charles Leaf and Miss Katherine McCaughlin, York; Mrs. Curtis Gunnet, Baltimore; Mrs. Michael Tate and Mrs. Harry Bidinger, Gettysburg. She also leaves two brothers, and a brother, Mrs. Anna Culler, Biglerville; Mrs. Sarah Hummelsbaugh, Carlisle; Jere Hummelsburg.

Funeral at two o'clock Friday afternoon in the McKnightstown Reformed church. Interment in the church cemetery.

JOHN STRASBAUGH

Five hours after he was caught in the main drive belt at the mill of David McClellan, near Fairfield, John Strasbaugh, 25 years of age, died at his home Monday morning. As his skull was fractured and death was the result of unconsciousness, he did not suffer.

Young Strasbaugh was employed by the mill and the belt which he was operating when he stepped across the belt running from the fly wheel to the engine. He misjudged the distance, and caught by the rapidly moving belt was thrown twenty five feet through the air, landing on his head. Picked up by Mr. Strasbaugh he was rushed home for several moments, but it was seen that he was beyond assistance. Dr. Bream, of Fairfield, was called and after examination the place helped him to his home.

There he was seen but once very ill and by the time a physician arrived he was in a serious condition. He was gradually until about six o'clock when he died.

He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Strasbaugh, of near Fairfield, and besides his parents, leaves a sister Miss Elizabeth Strasbaugh, at home. Funeral services will be conducted at the Catholic church in Fairfield interment in the church cemetery.

THOMAS McCULLOUGH

Thomas McCullough, a veteran of the Civil War and one of Gettysburg's best known colored residents, died at his home on Carlisle street yesterday at 6.15 o'clock Wednesday morning. He was aged 76 years and three months. He was 74 years of age.

Mr. McCullough was born in Pitts-burgh but lived in Gettysburg on July 4, 1863, the day after the battle. During the war he served in Company F, 32nd United States Colored Troops.

He was married to Miss Mary Ward, who survives with seven children, Mrs. Herbert Matthews, of Harrisburg and Clarence McCullough, of Gettysburg. He also leaves two step brothers, George and Andrew Ridley, of Hanover, and two sons, Harry Ridley, of Knoxboy; George and John Stegley, of Hamiltonban township.

The funeral will be held from Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock, interment in the Evergreen cemetery. Rev. W. F. Fleck officiating.

MRS. HARRIET GROUP

Mrs. Harriet Group, widow of John Group, formerly of this county, died Monday, March 6, at Hanover, at the home of her daughter. Until about three months ago she lived with her daughter, Mrs. Ida Rohrbaugh, at that time she had been a resident of Hanover.

The funeral was held on Wednesday morning with services in St. Matthew's Lutheran church, Gettysburg, at one o'clock. Rev. Dr. Hay officiated. Interment at St. Mark's Reformed church, along the Baltimore pike.

SAMUEL G. HECK

Samuel G. Heck, until three years ago a resident of Gettysburg, died on Thursday morning at his home in Philadelphia, at the home of a nephew, S. Z. Sharpless, 2000 Pine street. He was aged 82 years and 7 months.

Mr. Heck was formerly employed on South Washington street. With his wife he left Gettysburg to live with relatives three years ago. They stayed there but a short time when they went to Chester to live after their return to this place. Mr. Heck then went to Boiling Springs where he had charge of the property of Mr. Yiengst, his nearest relative.

Funeral services were held in the Gettysburg United Brethren church Saturday afternoon at two o'clock with Rev. Smith in charge. Interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

EDWARD D. SHEELY

Edward D. Sheely, one of the best known residents of the western part of the county, died at noon Friday at his home in Franklin township, near Caledonia, after nearly three years of tuberculosis aged 46 years.

Mr. Sheely was one of the late Mr. and Mrs. Noah Sheely and resided on the old Sheely homestead. Two sisters on the old home farm. He was married to Miss Ida Sheely, daughter of Mrs. Edward Robert, Cashtown; Mrs. Charles Steinbarger, Philadelphia; Miss Florence Sheely, Miss Estella Sheely, Miss Alice Sheely, Daniel and Robert Sheely, all residing with Sheely, living on the home farm.

The funeral Mrs. Wilbur Lefever, late home at one o'clock Sunday afternoon. Services will be conducted at the cemetery at Arendtsville.

TO HIT LOCAL TOBACCO MEN

War Tax will affect Gettysburg Manufacturers and Dealers. Those in McSherrystown will also Feel Effects.

From the small cigar manufacturing establishments in Gettysburg to the larger factories in McSherrystown and other places at that part of the county, all will have to pay their share of the direct war tax imposed upon cigar manufacturers and tobacco dealers and other business interests in this county by the so-called Underwood-Palmer war tax measure which went into effect Sunday.

The tax, it is said, will be a blow upon the cigar industry of the country, following the revenue of the tariff on the tobacco from the Philippine Islands and permitting the unlimited importation of the manufactured and unmanufactured product.

The new war tax will have to be paid by every manufacturer and tobacco dealer, the levies ranging from $5 to $1000, according to the amount of business done. All grocers and others whose sales amount to $200 must pay a tax, the assessment on each barre sales to that amount being $1.00.

It is stated that, while the tax will be a hardship on the small manufacturers and dealers, the consumer of cheap cigars, with their wives and mothers of the latter families make some money during the winter months. It will be equally burdensome on the larger cigar manufacturer, because of the fact that, in addition to having to pay his direct tax, his profits will be limited because of an attempt of being compelled to pay the broker's tax of $30 or reduce the price of his goods.

Slipping in a Duel.

Soldier Put Up a Brave Front, Though He Was Badly Scared.

During his early diplomatic career Bismarck was attached to the embassy at Petersburg, Henry Labouchere tells in Truth.

"There was a word of rude abuse one day in proceeding that must be put in dispatch," he confessed later. "To be killed in bad language, but to escape by accidentally is worse. I never felt more ashamed in my life."

Furnished at the combat certainly, the three Englishmen were the challenger, the ground of offense being that the antagonists, at a previous duel, had presumed to criticize the British minister for having given social offense because to a fellow citizen who, disappointed at losing a wager, had refused to pay it from conscientious scruples. The young diplomat assembled with spirit that his chief had behaved properly and that Englishmen were not so silly as to take offense, but left it to his seconds. And found himself pledged to fight the next morning at pistols at 7 o'clock. He had hoped for a apology, and shuddered at the prospect; but he did and allow his feelings to be dictated, and duly made his will and gave them the field of honor.

"The Austrian stood quiet; I stood quiet. The arrogant seconds stood quiet on a bridge." The seconds counted out that the Frenchman stepped out three paces, he had a quarter of a second, and they seemed to be shorter. It is the time that I remember most clearly of the picture. Nevertheless, I distinctly heard the report in the bullets. That I considered was bad, but as soon as I heard the bullets were rammed down with cheerful energy. By this time I had been placed facing each other a pistol was put into my hand, I was to give the signal, and the Frenchman. 'I shall count one, two, and then at the word Ire you will both fire.' Nevertheless, my nerve held. The both nodded. 'One, two, three, fire!' and both our pistols went off. So I had been done."

He thought it was all over, when his opponent, reigning up, remarked that he supposed he would be able to fire a second shot, but, should neither hit the third. Labouchere was quite willing to oblige, and the word was given. Both pistols missed and were fired, and they both missed—if indeed either fired at all—seven. Then Labouchere kindly demanded a third shot.

"The seconds consulted together. For a moment I feared there was to be a fresh ramrod, and I was greatly relieved when they declared that they considered that two shots were as nearly sufficient. I was delighted, but I decided to be most unhappy and kept up the farce of being a most miserable young man.

The whole affair was certainly farcical; but the fun depended upon the loading system. Such was very long marksmen—Exchange.

IMPORTED SEED PRICES.

Serious Clovér and Hairy Vetch Seed Show Upward Tendencies.

Prices for imported crimson clover and hairy vetch seed have recently shown such a marked upward tendency that specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture fear that the cost of these seeds, of which large quantities are annually sown here with the increasing use of these valuable forage crops, will be so. In fact, it is feared that the prices of the seed of these crops will be so high as to make it inadvisable to plant them this year.

Before the present European conflict the imported seed was obtained by sending at from $4 to $5 per bushel of 60 pounds. The seed was grown in Europe, and the high prices were due to the fact that the receipts from European countries were small. The prices then advanced to from $7.50 to $9 per bushel. Now that the countries from have continued to arrive, mill prices have risen, and no imported seed available for fall seeding than three was in the country at the same time. This seed according to the department of agriculture, is practically all appropriately the same price as that sold for $4 to $5 per bushel in the early part of the season. The present high prices are due to the demands by the department as unwarranted from the standpoint of the supply and the import price of the seed. Some American seed is available for the coming season, but the prices are exceptionally high. The department of agriculture intends the specialists are doubtful whether the seed can be profitably used as a green manure crop for plowing under, or as a hay crop, because of under other conditions where the seed is not produced abundantly. In such conditions they point out that it is not likely that the seed will be available and use the difference in price between the imported and the domestic seed would be sufficient to justify the farmer's time and the attendant fertilizer. The use will be limited to a comparatively small area of the poorest of wheat land. With the high price of seed, the cost of sowing here at $20 a ton the use of alfalfa resulted in a saving of $2.80 for every 100 pounds of timothy and $2.40 for every 100 pounds of mill clover hay. Seeding of alfalfa at the rate of 20 pounds of best seed produced daily an average of 1 full ration of cured hay, and against only 146 pounds on a ration of corn and timothy hay.

In popular practice alfalfa hay has been considered worth about two-thirds of the quantity of timothy of the same quality, but experiments have shown that these two hays are however, other uses to which it can be put by reason of having their fix ratios on a nothing even. After each cutting it covers the ground with fine, rich residues, and there is practically none of the coarse, woody stems often left when it somewhat disadvantageous as pasture for cattle and horses. Alfalfa is the other crop that will withstand the tramping of stock to be injured by it.

As a rule, alfalfa is not quite as profitable satisfactory, as in other respects. It is not to be alike, and the percentage of loss from spoiling is frequently quite sizable. The tendency, however, with which the hay may be cured and stored under adverse conditions without appreciable deterioration. On the other hand, within reasonable limits, it is not somewhat disadvantageous as pasture for cattle and horses. Alfalfa is the other crop that will withstand the tramping of stock to be injured by it.

THANKSGIVING TURKEY CROP

Farmers Bitter in their Opinion as to Number of Birds that will be Offered for Sale. What the Produce Men Believe.

That Thanksgiving turkey—usually a subject for great argument and dire predictions of scarcity—is again in the limelight and assertions are being added generally as to the condition and the extent of his real. Reports from many farms show the usual quantity of raisins among the poultry raisers of Adams County, inquiry made at the office of the Berry Produce Company in Gettysburg was met with this reply:

"We do not know what to think about the turkey market for Thanksgiving. Some of our farmers say that the supply will be plentiful. Others swear that they will have only a small portion of their last year's output. Some say that the birds are small and that few of them will be fit for the feast of Thanksgiving Day. Others say that they are of good size and will be in fine condition for the market at the latter part of the month. So there you are."

Albert Hollinger, proprietor of the produce house on the corner of Baltimore, Washington and Railroad streets, was asked for assistance in the matter when he said:

"Reports come to generally of a shortage in turkeys. The spring was too wet for most favorable raising of the fowls and when they were about half grown a disease killed a great many birds in some sections of this county so that I believe our output will be considerably short of last year. Just what price we may expect I cannot tell. Now it is seventeen cents a pound—the same price which prevailed last year at this time."

From other sections the report is that the supply will be about normal as shown. In Tennessee, Virginia, Maryland and all through the Blue Ridge mountain sections and in the counties there where Baltimore draws the largest portion of its supply of turkeys, farmers report that the birds are in excellent condition. There has been a good year for the crops and plenty of food was thus afforded.

The unsettled condition in financial circles, say the commission men, might in a way affect the shipping of the turkeys.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Chambersburg Hospital Could not Help Young Kahn.

Carl Kahn, the young man from Caledonia who was shot in the eye on Monday while hunting rabbits, was taken to a Philadelphia hospital on Tuesday by Dr. Woomer, of Caledonia. At the Chambersburg hospital, where he was taken on Monday morning, could be done for him as the eye specialist connected with the institution was not available. He was brought back to his home in Caledonia on Tuesday by Dr. Woomer, of both the bullet and the shot, which, it was at first thought, could be plainly seen in the eyeball.

HUMAN INTEREST STUDIES IN GREAT WAR IN EUROPE

Best Stories Contained in Recent Dispatches From Firing Line.

Awfulness of the Modern Armed Conflict Strikingly Portrayed.

A man's paragraph in the war is no news element in itself. Some of the best of human nature unfolds in times that grow great.

Perhaps no news interest in London during the first months of the war in northern France as reported by an eye witness, is such as the following:

"There are many petits commerces in the Rue Royale, on the north and the side that may be of interest. The fighting developed, even was grave, by a battalion commander, who has been in the front since the commencement of hostilities and has fought both in the open and behind improvised cover. He must, however, be borne in mind that in early movements the experience of a parts-war unit. It deals with the use and of the enemy's infantry.

"The important points to watch are the angles of the edges and corners of woods, especially those on the sides of the enemy's position. The ground in front must be well studied. The element of surprise is often obtained by the enemy's hand under cover of darkness, and because the latter are deployed and there is no longer the direct, protected land beside the men will not fire heavy fire for fear of hitting their own. It is a series of lines with the men well open and at intervals of about a yard or more, so, others it is made in lines with the men shoulder to shoulder and touching. But it is followed in all cases by supports in close formation. The last number wearer when the front line is checked or crowd on to the front line, and under the orders of their officers, and the front line is again reinforced.

Pinned to the Ground.

"The principal difficulty during the day of our troops in pinning them to the ground, and they have been greatly aided by their action.

"Many of the literature are not heavily introduced as great losses are incurred in the open, and the enemy's method in which the British army has been in the habit of.

"In fighting behind intrenchments the enemy's artillery is not very effective by making advances in line at dusk or dawn, when they are in the habit of massing themselves in, in the hope no doubt of being able to rush our lines, but they are not to be able, as during manoeuvers, to reach the first intrenchment by a single foot.

"Shrapnel-shots are often pitched in rows or wriggling about until they get the range, and then they are fired in salvos, and the enemy's fire from a standing position.

Fought Like Wild Beasts.

"The London Express prints the following account of the fighting at Soissons.

"The British field ambulance working with the contract of the Soissons of the Aisne, and the fighting was terrible in its fine old house, and Dr. Rector himself, the commandant, was wounded and motorcar of wounded after another.

"Dr. Rector, who is a Scotch surgeon, one of his dressers, made repeated trips under fire to the field of battle, returning to tend the wounded. He knows all the Scots regiments, and he was able sometimes pressing on to encounter his friends in the ranks.

"Mr. Gaines went into Grenadier Guards, and he found him in the thick of it, and part of the time had to crawl on his hands and knees to avoid the hail of bullets. Germans inhabitants, he said, were firing upon the troops from the rear, and he had to stop and bring to show his innocence.

"Mr. Gaines found the field with terribly wounded infantrymen, and his ambulance was filled in a few hours with some of them, who was bleeding to death from a shrapnel wound.

Fought Tied to Tree.

Captain Wilhelm Muller, a wounded German officer, who arrived in Munich an interesting story of the fighting at Vosges.

"The battles," he says, "loved most the Vosges mountains in the presence of the French observers. These strong positions were prepared with great care, with mines in trenches and fled trenches, with machine guns well hidden, with artillery so wounded they would not fire, with ammunition prepared for the enemy.

Turn Own Guns on Them.

A story of how three French soldiers turned the guns of a captured battery to the disconcerting Germans, who fled in confusion, is told in a letter sent home by a Swiss. French artillerymen who had been watching the proceedings then opened fire and exterminated the rest.

The letter adds that the prisoners were escorted to the second lieutenant and the soldiers were made a corporal for his part as a reward for their daring work.

Drew Lots For Death.

Lots were drawn by two officers to decide who should remain in command of the rear guard regiment of Austrians. The officer chosen was sworn to fight to the death. The two then remarried man with a family. Another officer instantly volunteered to take his place, and the offer was reluctantly accepted. The latter then ordered the Austrians after bidding a touching farewell to their heroic comrade.

Army Tradition Upset.

The British army, it seems now, says a London correspondent, will come out of the present struggle with its traditions greatly demonstrated. Traditionary the officers have come from the upper class and the ranks from the lower. But experience has shown in the present war that competent men be advanced on purely military merits. The system is particularly serious at the Front. The rule is that a subaltern is killed every shoulder strapp.

"Even the best way to come from to officer the next vacancy is to the rank and file. Many officers have been killed in the ranks of the regiments, and the flexibility are acting as drill masters. The new system will not be put in force in take charge when the new force is ready. The old system was made for protection for those of military intent and the commissioned officers will follow under the test of fire.

Sportsman Soldiers.

Recruiting in Scotland there is unprecedented activity. Regarding sportsmen battalion is proceeding with remarkable rapidity. The total is about 1,000.

It is being raised and financed by Mrs. Cunliffe Owen and is in all probability the last battalion which will be allowed service to be created as such by Lord Kitchener. The battalion will be known in the British forces in which the men will be drafted when they are needed by the authorities. The recruiting is proceeding.

Men Killed, Cow Valuable.

In Liberia of Paris creates a weekly feature of the following kind:

"We were sitting in our cabins smoking our pipes when a shell struck right at the opening. It killed three dogs, a monkey and a goat, but most everybody in the grains. The cow was the only one left of the flock and still escaped."

The letter of the 15th and 16th of September," said this official, "was written from the trenches during the village of Y, which German artillery had reduced to ruins. Another letter, dated from the same place, says: 'A large treasure which we called Jeanne d'Arc, a cow which had escaped at our position with the enemy and which had been wounded by a shell, wounded, remained there.'

Private Proves Hero.

"The bestowal of the Victoria Cross will private to rescue the wounded; and in many cases to risk death," the most cruelties 200 yards of absolutely open ground between the lines. This is one renowned. Then a simple soldier who had distinguished himself by deeds and volunteered. For three consecutive days he went out under fire and brought in the unfortunate in the open. He is now a corporal and has been recommended for the honor.

"Another was introduced in spite of a violent fire from the enemy. He was killed on the evening of the third day. Expert engineers were sent out under fire placed himself in front of the shafts and drew the cart ashore. On the way he met a wagon which had been abandoned by its driver and calmly took a horse from it and harnessed it to the cart. Another was the man encouraged to fifteen thousand francs by permission and the military medal. It is unnecessary to add that the prizes mentioned was not accepted."

Spies Everywhere.

The German spies in Belgium, says, publishes a letter from the front giving an account of the activities of these German spies, who, says the writer, have been specially trained for the work in order for natural posts with practically no knowledge of methodical skill throughout this neighborhood. Besides the numerous acts of the kindness dividing his shop to indicate the position of artillery, even the tiniest farmer has little quiescent spies who are not conscious. Like the rest of the people, they are overwhelmed at dawn with a terror of visits."

STRINGING PEARLS

Only the Choicest Silk Is Used For the Best Jewels.

TYING KNOTS AS A FINE ART.

The Perfect Meeting of the Necklace Beads Upon More Than Tiny Twists Are Formed, and in May Take a Lot to Master the Knack.

The pearl strikers themselves call it a "trade." They are of the kind of people to talk about art. If they see anything in their work beyond the mere fact that "stringing" is a good trade from which to make an honest and somewhat vague appreciation of it is not to be found in the majority of the bauble.

Although not professing to be expert judges, I have never met a pearl stringer whose eyes and fingers were not trained to a fine perception of the fitness and color of the beads, a tridescent lustre of the jewel of the shades. It would be an impossible for them to intricate an artificial pearl from a real one, as it would be for a sculptor to begin to polish a piece of glass and expect it to sparkle like a diamond.

The writer said that the little known industry of pearl stringing is dying out, but it is not the fact. It is not necessary to yet tarnished to suspend the pearls between knots to keep them apart. The industry is exclusive, and the knowledge of the trade is not passed on from mother to daughter, but from master workman to apprentice. Inviting and mounting of pearls is a trade by itself, and a very lucrative one.

Good sight is one of the essential qualities for the successful pearl stringer, when she is employed in matching or re-matching a necklace of pearls. The beads have to be arranged according to their size and color, sometimes with the most carefully sorted into piles on the table before stringing. The difficulty of the design is that of a flower or leaf pattern, and the knotting is where the biggest point in the case that touches the artistic sense comes in. Some of the necklaces by the way, are very old, for the pearls are sometimes handed down as an reason why they should not be a trifle worn out. The knots are tied by using as the handsome, antique pearl clasp and cost sometimes as much as fifteen and seventeenth centuries are frequently seen in the London museums.

Often the finest silk is used for string ing the finest pearls. Great heats and cold will not affect the quality of the silk, and with no more cost lighter than the ordinary kind. Pearl necklaces that are called famous pearls, mean celebrated beads and clasps that are issued to keep together on output, but various sizes in diameter, from a tiny pearl, so often strands worthy of the name of necklace.

Now the art of the stringer is to keep the pearls separate, and yet to have the knots so close together that the beads cannot move. Then also, to make a knot between each bead, and to bring the beads to the length of the necklace, but not to stretch the silk so that it will be pearls. The knack of making this tie, which is the secret of the whole trade, is master the perfect hang of the beads when they are strung, and to understand on how it is made.

The writer spends one enough for threading small seed pearls, so the knots are almost out of sight, and after a while this is at last! She struggled with the knots, and after a time succeeded in getting them even and regular, but when it came to the clasp, other matters intervened, and the necklace was put away. When she is making a tassel for the end of the watch guard, or her work at it one's length every few minutes, measuring it to see if it agrees with her well trained eye.

It is necessary to serve to speak of the artist lengthy and unfailing care required in the manufacture of the pearl, in connection with great commodious. For the pearl is the most beautiful to the to it. Some There are some indies who have not the requisite amount of time to own business, but strange, though it may seem, the most successful of the pearl stringers are those who have to depend upon their work for their support.

Another section of the pearl stringer is the little known, as quiet and distinct, that of the mounting of one in the threaded woman who goes to admire and covet. It is the one woman whose every time is thought to the perfect fingers that have strung the beautiful beads and tied the almost invisible, causing hundreds of dollars to their diamond clasp.

The little band of artisans are constantly being augmented by recruits in their humble workrooms divisions of business. Whether the pearl is worn at the first and true return in the perfect hands of their work. Chicago Record-Herald.

Both Played the Game.

The head of the firm approached his partner.

"What was the man whom I noticed in your room just now?" he asked. "Your manner suggested to be walking round the office."

"Oh," it was in this Business Man and the one should always be careful when interviewing outsiders to have eyes back in the field. But I think the other fellow must have been up to the same thing. When we settled down at the finish we was sitting on the window sill. Was the Gloucester reply."—London Answers.

EXCURSION A SUCCESS

Reports Show the 1100 Went to Pittsburgh.

The first excursion run to Pittsburgh by the Western Maryland proved to be a great success from beginning to end. The train was run in three sections and the total number of passengers who made the trip from the different points was in the neighborhood of 1100, those proving that the excursion was a popular one position for the Western Maryland.

The section which was run from Baltimore hauled between 500 and 600; the regular train which was run over the B. and H. division via Emmitsburg had some 200, most of them being from Emmitsburg, Fairfield and Gettysburg. Hagerstown was also well represented in Pittsburgh as the tickets were sold from that city. The Hagerstown band was also represented on the way it handled the crowds.

PECULIAR POISON

Famous from Dudley Apple Butter Cases Peculiar Distress.

Mrs. H. V. Kepner, of near town, was the victim of a peculiar mishap on Friday while making apple butter for a neighbor. The person for whom the apple butter was being made had placed sassafras roots in it to give it the flavor, but unknown to her the sassafras was some poison sumac. Mrs. Kepner's hands immediately developed her face and infected it, causing the face to swell almost beyond its natural size. Some of the apple butter was tasted by her and her mouths also became infected and their lips were greatly swollen.

Leopard a Wise Animal.

The leopard exhibits in his utterance strong skills for its more powerful rivals the lion and tiger in the possession of greater activity and power of climbing. Often it is driven from its prey and carried away by the brute forces of these animals, but it has the wise knowledge of storing the remains of its meals in trees, the weight of which would be beyond it on each after being sometimes almost incredible.

WANT EDDIE PLANK

Trio of Clubs Seek Two Mark Pitchers.

If the Athletics are going to discard Eddie Plank and Jack Coombs and Jack Combs by the waiver route they will be given a chance to pick on the part of certain American League clubs as they are among the three veterans. According to reports, the Yankees, Naps and Red Sox are after the Athletic pair and one of Connie's mighty hurlers will be given to the waiver grabber to get them outright.

Bill Carrigan, the Red Sox manager, has informed Ross Lannin of the Boston Americans to get Plank at any price for the figure that Eddie is able to find the American League magnate willing to pay. Plank would be a valuable acquisition to the Red Sox pitching staff, as he has a mighty staff of pitchers and with Plank would have the best hurlers in the League.

SAVE PEN MAR FROM BIG FIRE

Mountain Blazes on all Sides, Crest's Big Dining Room Threatened but Saved by Hard Work. Cottagers Rush to the Rescue.

Mountain fires are still burning throughout the Blue Ridge section. Along Pen Mar the greatest amount of damage is being done, and where a few days ago the mountain was a beautiful, a strong wind scattered the blaze and it has broken out at 10 different points on the summit. Frost district on Pen Mar Park was saved by the hard work of the Reading and several other buildings about the Pen Mar Park were saved by hard of tireless fire. Five burned near the Grand Junction.

Sparks have been blown a half mile or more to start new fires. The chief work of the fire-fighters now is to keep the blaze away from the buildings. Several hundred people are fighting and watching the fire.

Bonneville College, adjoining to Mrs. Ella Finch, of Baltimore, was saved from destruction by fire when through hard work of over 100 volunteers from Pen Mar and with the assistance of the wind, which shifted from the west to the north saved the building.

An unoccupied house near the Finch property, owned by Lewis Kohler, caught fire and was reduced to ashes in a few minutes. The fire is burning toward Pen Mar Park, and is making slow progress. Over 100 volunteers, requesting those owning cottage, to be on the ground and render assistance help fight the fire. Extra trolley cars were sent to Pen Mar for the purpose and many went by automobile.

Mr. Stevens, proprietor, his report that a big fire, which has burned 1,000 acres of timber and 5,000 acres of of mountain land, in some portion of Adams county, Md. Yesterday morning the fire did not break out Sunday, but was kept under by the 100 volunteer Wanderlusters and they say that the fire is under control. The fire charge is that the Wanderlusters extinguished the fire and left everything in the dry leaves. About Clearspring, Sandyhook, Md., and Knoxville, Tennessville the fires which had raged there for some days have been gotten under control.

Thursday afternoon the fire in the mountains between Pen Mar and Blue Rock from the Doubling Gap Spiritual Hotel and still continues to burn, while some twenty men are fighting it at this point. The Pen Mar and Blue Rock Shore Lumber Company was menaced for a time, however, by the conflagration and the stave mill operated by the company was in danger for a time. The farm properties of Mrs. James Arnold were also threatened. The fire is now under control, but Cumberland and Perry sides of the gap and has burned over about 100 acres. The loss will total a big figure even if the hotel property escapes.

END RAPIDLY DRAWING NEAR

Competition Is on Keen for Prize that only Sentence Effects will Make a Winner. Help of Friends will be Required.

After this week there are but two weeks left of The Times-News circulation campaign.—Just twelve working days in which to gather votes and subscriptions. And yet there is any amount of territory that has not been gone over and there are any number of subscriptions to be had. That means that those who expect to win a prize must hustle, and must hustle harder than they have at any other time of the contest.

And in addition to putting forth an extra effort for the next two weeks, there must be new system to their work so that the time used will count for the most possible subscriptions and votes. Contestants tell us that they jumped from place to place and leaving the territory in between untouched, will not pay and that they will lose a great number of subscriptions in doing.

All during the contest the workers have been dropping out the ranks and locked the easiest to them and as a consequence these places have been gone over a number of times and every possible subscription has been taken. But there are any number of places that have not been touched at all and the only way to find these is to make a systematic canvass. Start at each city and make up your mind that you are going over a certain territory and that when you have finished there will not be a place that you have missed and that there will not be a possible subscription for that you have overlooked.

And if your friends offer ever going to help, now is the time. Soon the contest will be over and the final day of reminder a prize on your own efforts will be gone. Make no mistake about that, and show them that, if they are going to help, now is the time. Call at the office and get them a receipt book and when you so write up the subscriptions and turn them over to you. Get them started at once as you will need every day. That you can gather and every bit of help that you can get if you are going to be a prize winner.

DESTROYING TIMBER

South Mountain Reafforested by County Forest Fires.

Six mountain fires are raging in different sections of the adjoining county, while another located on the north side of Green Mountain, in Fredrick county, is rapidly sweeping toward the boundary line.

Four fires are burning in the vicinity of Smithsburg, one near the reservoir, the second on Big Mountain, toward Keedysville, the third above the Raven Rock stream and the fourth near the Frederick county line.—Cumberland Dispatch.

The vicinity of Thursday Sunday night's fire, which started on the top of the mountains south of Clearspring, is now in the belt of fine-fighting facilities the fires are assuming serious proportions and already thousands of dollars' worth of timber has been destroyed.

The largest blaze is in the mountains above Clearspring. It is sweeping along the crest of the mountain like lava, one end of which is only a few miles from the town. A dense volume of smoke is enveloping the country, forcing many inhabitants out of the reach of the fumes to-day.

COUNTY FARMER HAS NECK BROKEN

Mose Hitchcock Almost In-stantly Killed when Fall from Load of Coal Near East Berlin on Thursday Evening.

With his neck broken and three ribs crushed, Moses Hitchman, a farmer of near East Berlin, was found lying on the metal between that place and his home about three miles distant, at an early Thursday evening. Hitchman had fallen from a two horse load of coal which he was driving stupor and the wagon passed over him, one of the wheels striking him on his pocket.

There was no known eye witness of the accident and the first man on the scene was W. C. Loss who, in passing noticed that upon the load of coal and thinking he was only intoxicated, passed by and later reported to A. J. Thompson who lives but a short distance away. When Mr. Thompson investigated he found Hitchman breathing his last.

Doctor Eight, of East Berlin, was immediately called to the scene but arrived Hitchman was dead. When last seen before the accident the two horse team was coming down a hill and after the accident the two horses were found in the field where they had been trotting at a lively rate.

Mr. Hitchman was about 50 years old, lived on a small farm about three miles from East Berlin, leaves his wife and seven children, Mrs. Ida Hitchman, Mrs. Lizzie Bream and Philip Hitchman, East Berlin; Mrs. Mary Hann and Hannah, and three others at home. A number of brothers and sisters also survive.

THAT PRIZE WINNER

Winning Summers' Float Brings Dividends from Suffragist.

(Communicated).

It would appear from the arrangement of Mr. Brotzki's Anti Suffrage float, that the men of this town, at least, are laboring under a delusion about the arrangement of the domestic affairs of the average family vote. Of course, we ladies appreciate the chivalrous attitude of the men who will take six men to properly "man" that float, but when it comes to only one woman in the home. Nevertheless we are not discouraged, nor surprised at once. We fully aspect that, with the proper education of the men in accord with Suffrage, one man will do all the work in the home—cooking, dishwashing, sweeping, dusting, cleaning and taking care of the children for, after all it has been only a matter of about an hour a year to cast his ballot, and the remainder of the twelve hours out of twenty-four, which he has been working for the year. Sundays we may help with the dishes if not too wearied. Assuredly, all the men in Adams County are intending to vote for Woman Suffrage, otherwise they would not stand-patters, have always voted the straight Republican ticket and will "straight Republican" ticket and voting for Woman Suffrage is not a Party platforms. Hence we hasten to let the men know that they can be expected of them in the near future.

FOREST FIRE AT BOILING SPRINGS

Valuable Land in Burned over and Scores of Men Go out to Fight the Flames which are not Reported under Control.

Stretching over a path almost a mile in width and spreading rapidly before a high wind, a mountain fire was kindled near Beaverdam, early Saturday morning, in heated Inwood Bailey Springs and is now on the land of the South Mountain Land Company. A number of men drawn from Bailey Springs and the surrounding country are fighting the fire under the direction of State Forest Ranger Chaffin.

The blaze is one of the two which broke out near Dillsburg, on Saturday from unknown causes. The other which was a smaller fire, burned toward the town and for a time threatened the house and buildings on the Prosser farm near that town, it was finally stopped, after strenuous efforts.

Starting at Beaverdown in the vicinity of Big Dog Wood the fire burned westward all day, Monday and to-day. Land in the vicinity of Bailey Springs was burned. The fire originally started near the crest of the mountain and is working back toward Constable Wire, of Dillsburg, called out some men to work on the fire. There was a slight attempt, it being claimed that it broke a fence out of the legislators this week is in the charge of the county supervisors. The blaze headed toward property near the Reading Ore Banks near Boiling Springs and progressed to the land of South Mountain Land Company.

Various estimates have been made as to the area burned over which most it's a big figure. The fire will be heavy. Part of this section was burned over a few years ago. It is believed that unless there is a shift of wind that considerably more damage will be caused.

WILL ORGANIZE RED CROSS HERE

Branch of National Society will be Established in Gettysburg Next Week in Send Bandages and Supplies to Europe.

For the purpose of sending bandages and supplies to Belgium and for the European war zone, a Gettysburg Red Cross auxiliary will be formed. Society will be organized here next week, and the date and place for holding the first meeting will be announced later.

All over the country, these branches are being organized. The national organization is supplying surgeons all the kinds of material needed and full instructions. Red Cross societies throughout the country may go ahead and form their organizations, and they will yield the best results. Bandages in numerous quantities are needed and also all materials sent to New York for its shipments are thoroughly sterilized that they may be ready for immediate use when as they are received on the other side.

It is believed that the American Red Cross will do much to relieve misery in sending clothing and supplies for the soldiers which the war has scarred in the front. Whether or not the Gettysburg auxiliary will be strictly will take up this phase of the work will be determined when the next meeting next week.

Red Cross supplies from national headquarters will be secured before next week's meeting which will be a very busy one and all town will care to assist. Mrs. E. H. Trus is in communication with the national Red Cross relative to the work of the local branch.

FIGHTING SKY OF LARGE SALAMES

Only Eight Adams County Teachers outside of the High Schools are Paid More than Low Requires. Fellow School Code.

Aside from those employed in the various borough high schools there are only eight Adams county teachers who receive more than the minimum salary allowed by law. This fact is disclosed by the current issue of the School Bulletin issued by County Superintendent Baltz.

Of the 220 teachers in the county, 110 receive $45 a month and 85 are paid $50 a month. The School Code provides that no less than $45 shall be paid to any regular teacher, while those who have taught two years and have any certificate higher than provisional may demand $50. The law applies to rural and borough districts.

As would naturally be expected, Gettysburg pays the highest salaries. W. A. Burgoon, superintending principal of the local public schools, receives $1800 a month while other members of the High School faculty receive $85, $80, $75 and less a month. Only one teacher outside of Gettysburg gets $100 and that is Prof. Roy D. Koonse, principal of the Littlestown school.

Of the eight teachers in the county who do not teach in high schools and get more than the minimum salary three are in the Gettysburg schools, three in Hamilton township, one in Liberty township, and one in Biglerville.

The minimum salary of $40 or $50, according to the number of years and experience of the teacher, has done much to provide the county with a corps of teachers who are better paid than were the profession is far from being crowded for every regular position. Dent Roth has about a half dozen schools. For these he receives a call only in securing teachers. These schools are not at all hard to fill, and that the difficulty comes not from candidates those who have not, however, have always been accommodated.

This condition is not alone in Adams County but is reported also from other sections of the state. The teaching profession not drawing so many as might be expected. The losses through marriage and to other professions are great and a steady new incoming class is required to fill vacancies.

The cost of maintaining the county schools have remained practically even from year to year and few districts show any material change in the tax rate. In the districts where the new hyperschool schools there is frequently required an increase and in the main appropriation being sufficient to maintain the public schools.

800 ACRES BURNED OVER

Blaze Is Halted before It Reaches Mush Valuable Timber Land.

After the efforts of almost half a hundred men who had been fighting it for two days were unsuccessful in stopping the spread, the mountain fire which started in the lands of Benjamin Rice near Barrville, was established Thursday morning by the timber storm which passed over that section.

In all, between 800 and 900 acres of land was burned over. The timber was second growth for the most part but on the sides of the burned area were other valuable trees which at times were frequently menaced by the spreading fire. The storm will result several thousands of dollars although an estimate could not be given today.

Benjamin Rice, the owner, Attorney H. T. Craighead and Charles Wharton sustained losses. J. W. Rice lost a small tract burned. The source of origin is believed to have been sparks. The fire was not near any building although some were within a few hundreds threatened.

It is possible that application will be made to the State Fire Marshal for a patrol of that section during the fire hunting season many fires occur.

WERE EXPERTS

Members of Bowling Cruise Trust May have been there.

After a thorough investigation of the penniless robbery at Grantham several days ago by detectives and officials, headed by A. B. Crawford, of Mechanicsburg, a government inspector, have come to the conclusion that the robbery was the work of experts, and that the party to all intents believed to what is known as the "Bowling Crime trust." The work was like that at Mt. Holly Springs and other places where the robberies have occurred.

Emory Williams is spending some time at his home on Steinwehr avenue.

HUNTER SHOT BY COMPANION

Carl Kahle, of Cashtown, First Hunting Season Victim. Result Shot Goes through Eyelid and is Embedded in the Eye.

Struck in the eye by a glancing shot, fired by one of two companions, Carl Kahle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Kahle, of Cashtown, was the first victim of the rabbit hunting season in Adams County. The accident occurred early on Monday and Kahle was brought to the Chambersburg hospital for treatment.

The injured boy had been employed at Connellsville for the past two years by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Maryland Railway Company. He had returned to his home sometime this time of the year, in part, because of his fondness for the hunting. Early on Monday with two companions, he went to the farm of J. C. Minter about a half-mile northwest of Cashtown, and there they spent some time hunting.

During the morning they chased a rabbit into a thicket and Allen Hunsecker and Roy Shultz both fired at it. Young Hunsecker thought that Kahle was not in range but out of the shot entered a small limb, glanced off and penetrated the left eyelid. One of the number five shot, went through the eyelid and lodged in the eye. The white part of the eye, above the pupil, was injured. Its sight was very much bedded and partly exposed.

The injured boy was rushed to the office of Dr. Wonner in Cashtown but the physician decided that he should go to the Chambersburg hospital. The accident occurred at once offered his automobile to take Kahle to the Chambersburg hospital. The offer was accepted and the hurry was made to that institution.

The injured boy suffered a great deal of excitement in Cashtown where Kahle is well known and where he has many friends. He is twenty years old and unmarried.

ADMITS THEFT OF THREE MACHINES

Llewellyn, Caught in Act in Thrilling Arrest, Tells of His Operations. All Cars Located and Men to Given His Freedom.

Admitting the theft of three Ford cars, Raymond Llewellyn who was arrested by Chief of Police Hartman near Gettysburg several weeks ago, was released in Philadelphia Criminal Court on Friday when his father paid the costs and secured the return of the bond. Two of the cars, Llewellyn, it will be revealed, was the owner of, obtained by Officer Hartman only after the official had shot at the car in which he was riding and held him up at the point of a revolver.

The release of the auto thief was secured through his confession to the theft of all three cars and satisfying the authorities of their whereabouts. The first car was secured here, another at Morgantown West Virginia, and a third at Wheeling. A MISSING LETTER

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

Mr. wife, who is predisposed to routine, was painstakingly the street one day when she came to a standstill with a red flag at the door. She went in and bought a small basket of beets it was brought home and scaled to ensure privacy. My wife took the beets one by can and dusted them all. Then she sat down and considered. Between the leaves of one of them was a letter, sealed, and addressed simply to James Overstreet, in a neighborhood in which we had no friends.

I was appointed to for an opinion as to what should be done with it. I decided that it be taken to the house and delivered. This was the right house, but the piece was deserted. I knocked and waited on the step, it was quiet. I knocked again to be sure, my address on the upper left hand corner. In a week it was returned. My wife was disgusted on making a dead letter office of our home. She had decided to write to the address of the sender and returning the letter with a note saying that it had been written in a feminine hand.

"Perhaps it contains a check for the rent," she said.

"The brute!" she continued, handling the letter with disgust.

The writer was evidently a young man. He had spelled it out with a lever and either had seen little of or be in a hurry. The letter was brief. It wrote that she was heartbroken over the fact that her father refused to ask him to come back to her and that unless he did something about it that night he—and she would be there for good.

"It looks to me," I said, "that she has to be in that house by 12 o'clock, or I wonder if she didn't mean the 12th to be in that house."

"What makes you think that?" asked my wife.

"Because," I replied, "she says that if he doesn't do something about it that night he—and she would be there for good. We're invited to the wedding."

"Indeed," I replied. "When does it take place?"

"Next week."

BRICK PLANT IS CEASES WORK

Many Orders Ahead but Shortage of Men Prevents Operations. Prospects are Better and Production of the Men are Laid Off Tuesday Morning.

In spite of the fact that they have sufficient orders ahead to keep their hands working for some time, the plant of the Adams Brick Brick Company at this place has been closed for an indefinite period. W. C. Bream, manager of the establishment, is disappointed over the failure of the plant to start.

The real for lack of orders that we have found necessary this reason-ably early in the year. There is a large amount of our product ordered. Shipments on nearly all of these have been held up, however, owing to the extravagancy of the money market and, until there is a change in this we are unable to give some assurance about the time for shipments. The men are to remain virtually idle. I trust that conditions will improve soon in the near future so that we can go ahead," Mr. Bream said. He stated that he definite data for resuming operations. It may be several months or it may be a month."

There were thirty two men employed at the plant when it closed down on Saturday. Of these only a few remained to help in the work of busy cleaning up about the place and getting it in shape for resuming.

Mr. Orwald stated on Tuesday that a force of men will be put to work at bricks to meet the imminent demand. At this time when he believes it will be possible to operate with the full force again.

TURKEY STRONG ON BLACK SEA

Our Fleet on Inland Ocean Outweighs Russia's.

GAS ARMY OF MILLION.

Commander Says Into War Hey Among Almost New Alignment of Powers With Probabilities in Favor of Allies—Have Large Base Favorable to the German Side.

The initial advantage on the Black sea apparently lies with Turkey in the opening of hostilities against Russia, according to observers. In addition to the battle cruiser Goeben, which has attained a speed of 27½ knots and is one of the most formidable craft afloat, and the protected cruiser Breslau of a like base record, Turkey has in her Black sea the battleships of Dread-nought class, Barbaros Hairedin, of two 12-inch, crackers and numerous destroyers and torpedo boats, many of which are modern. This fleet is under Admiral Limpus.

Turkish Strength Massed.

Should Odessa, 27,000 tons, 25 knots, tonight from Batum.

Kharput-ek-in Barbarossa and Turgut Reis, 9,000 tons each, 23 knots, formerly German battleships, and two others of the same type.

Two cruisers, the Hamidieh and the Medjidieh, 3,000 tons, 23 knots.

Russia's Black Sea Fleet.

Russia's Black sea fleet consists of six pre-Dreadnought battleships, one protected cruiser, two armored gunboats and a number of old torpedo-boats and gunboats.

Three Dreadnoughts are under construction, but can be in no condition for months.

If Turkey is to be counted Turkey is the strongest nation to be involved in the great European struggle. Her particular has been exported for several years by Germany, and her officers and non-commissioned officers are those of the highest possibility there.

Notwithstanding the weakness of the allies, it has been deemed inevitable that Turkey would yield to German influence and join against Russia. However the opening of the war 800 Germans of three have arrived in Turkey, as well as a large number of munitions of war, including some of the big siege guns. Germany even went so far as to let the Dardanelles forts and a German officer, Weiter Pasha, placed in command. All the fortifications of the Bosporus and the Asia Minor coast have been overhauled and mines have been sown in the channel.

Limup Will Favor Allies.

If the existence of Turkey falls the smaller embassy Italy and the other Balkan states are expected. It will bring 3,371,000 additional men into battle, as well as three more active. It is also event the line up will probably be in favor of the allies.

Turkey, with an army on war footing figured at approximately 1,000,000, and a navy of thirty-five warships manned by 8,000 men, will join the contention 1,881,000 men to the German cause.

The allies will enter into the service an 810 warships and a total of 2,580,000 men contributed as follows: Italy — Army 1,200,000; navy, 140 ships men, 30,000; Servia—Army, 300,000; navy, 6 torpedo ships; manned by 600 men; Bulgaria—Army, 360,000, and Roumania, army 800,000. Albeit Belgium's future moves there is much speculation as she is still under upheld her enemies in the recent second Balkan war, and she may be left out.

Doubt About Goeben and Breslau.

Turkey mobilized her army early in August, supposedly with the moral support of the German government, it was thought the forces would be employed against Greece in the recovery of territory lost in the Balkan war Greece bought the battleships Mississippi and Idaho from the United States, and to offset this Turkey purchased essentially two ships from Germany, the Goeben and Breslau, which sought refuge from the allied fleet in the Mediterranean. Their last known move doubt, however, that there was a keen Rio pro-Turkish for It has been reported that three ships, although flying the Crescent ensign, were in fact German.

Turkey's entrance was brought by German influence, as Indeed Turkey is absolute the prime against three and like the Italo-Turkish trouble.

The staggering cost of continuing the multi-billion colossal political, social, and the neighbor of war and his party, were put on the defensive. The acts of the extreme powers threatening the overexpansion of Turkey have been followed by German action as in Persia, Belgium and France, partly from a demobilization.

Russia understand Turkey's vicinity of necessity. Nearly two weeks ago the revelation of the Russian embassy were transferred to Odessa.

War Shadows Our Banks.

While banks are going to be the fash ion. This applies in men and women alike. The time is the last insane Fool, but who sets the style, but the slow monarchy of war has thrown a gloomy monkey enamored that so soon as the Austrian ambassador left Washington they will have to make white face! The Grand Duke Nicholas is Russia and the importation has almost ceased.

FARMERS' MEETING.

Capt. Alfred Browne, commander of the Pleasant View Grange, No. 1174, and three Life-Saving society, arose from the battery to the deck, 82 feet, in 10 seconds and 30 minutes. This was the first ascent for the day. Another for 14 Samuel Richards of Boston, who made the ascent in 10 minutes and 10 minutes. Many predicted attempts for the afternoon, but owing to the failures on account of the strength of the tides.—New York Times.

About the Orchid.

In 1758 only 10 specimens of Eulodens were known to be under cultivation. In 1713 a fourteen-foot specimen is Japan, but up to 1836 only 100 species were known. It is said to require 30 years to flower. The plant is a native of the Philippines. The price paid for the Eulodens was 150 guineas.

Stealin That Holds True.

"He stole me but me stole mine" was a maxim which never fell upon dishonor. Thus we would entice children by rather than enforcement, as we look backward, is but natural. The starting for well-cooked food is wholesome handiness. But if like potash grows more solicious as the opposite ones grow the changed is not more peculiar in this country or that. As in the case of food, the art of simplicity is the proof of a golden, if primitive, age.

Sectoral Tendrons.

The Pennsylvania canals spurred forward by migrating hordes in the east, and drovers hearkened by trained armies over the Russian frontiers, were compelled to bend the full force of their tribal organizations to warfare. Their reviews were trained to the instinctive life. Their courage and spirit were constantly fed by martial of exploits of the chase and the battlefield. Their very sports were tests of skill and strength and were full of haunting and homely.—Englewood Magazine.
